FBI — LOS ANGELES

In just a few days we will be graduating from UCLA. We are graduating from what is supposed to be an institution of higher learning, a center for intellectual freedom and expression, and a school for human development. Yet, we all know that the University is a center for war research and development, an institution in which the professors live off Defense Department and State Department contracts, and a school in which our brains are really being trained to produce the weapons and strategies of future wars and "pacification programs." Further, we also know that the University maintains an entire bureaucratic complex, the Office of Special Services, that fulfills the purpose of allowing the draft board to keep track of us.

And, the world that we graduate into is far from peaceful. There are now 3 1/2 million American troops spread around the world, ready to kill for peace. Those of us who are men face the prospect of being conscripted into the military to join in pacifying Vietnamese villages with napalm, or American urban ghettos with machine guns.

It is in order to express our disatisfaction with University complicity in the war, and the draft, in order to voice our discontent with a world of suffering, fighting and death, and in order to state our protest against our imminent conscription into the war machine that we members of the 1968 graduating class of UCLA do now step forward.

Because Commencement is the point at which the University transfers our trained minds to a society that survives on a war economy and a war technology and our bodies to the military machine of such a society, we will also use this time to voice our protest.

We will express our opposition to the war in Viet Nam by remaining seated during the singing of the National Anthem.

We will express our opposition to University complicity in the war, the draft, and racism by remaining seated during the singing of "Hail to the Hills of Westwood" and the Benediction.

We will demonstrate our desire for the attainment of a peaceful society and a peace economy by wearing peace armbands.

We ask all graduating seniors to join us in the expression of our views by remaining seated during the singing of the National Anthem and the Alma Mater, and by wearing a peace armband over the left sleeve of your commencement gown.

On Sunday, June 9 at 2 PM in the A-level lounge of the Student Union there will be a meeting to work out the final details for making this commencement a meaningful one. We invite you to join us at this meeting. Here's hoping to see you then.

Yours in Peace,
COMMITTEE FOR A MEANINGFUL COMMENCEMENT

PS If you plan to participate in Commencement, we would like to remind you that the last day to rent your cap and gown is June 7 on the third floor of the Student Union.

Further, we also know that the University maintains an entire bureaucratic complex, the Office of Special Services, that allows the draft boards to keep track of us.

And, the world that we graduate into is far from peaceful. Those of us who are men face the prospect of being drafted into the military to join in "pacifying" Vietnamese villages with napalm, or American urban ghettos with machine guns.

It is in order to express our disatisfaction with University complicity in the war and the draft, in order to voice our discontent with a world of killing and death, and in order to protest our imminent conscription into the war machine, that we, members of the 1968 graduating class of UCLA, do now step forward.

a Word to Seniors

THE SELECTIVE SERVICE HAS SOMETHING SPECIAL TO SAY TO YOU:
"TOUGH SHIT, BABY. WE'LL BE SEEING YOU SOON."

If you are a Senior this year, there will be no grad school deferment for you. Those deferments have been reserved for doctors, dentists, veterinarians, osteopaths, optometrists, and ministerial students.

A Senior who sneaks into grad school anyhow, won't even be allowed to take a I-S if he's had a II-S since July of 1967.

That same II-S means that your draft board won't give you a deferment if your wife (much less your girl friend) has a baby.

As for conscientious objector claims, though they might mean a better chance for acquittal in court, they are being turned down by draft boards at the rate of 96 out of 100.

And, to make the picture complete, all occupational deferments have been delivered up to the total whim of your draft board.

Unless you have something fancy in reserve: a medical defect or a hardship situation (and they better be heavy) your B.A. is going to be a re-requisite for nothing but a P.F.C.

This summer, you'll be as vulnerable as a 20 year old shipping clerk. Congress, in an exceptionally nasty mood, has pulled the college cushion out from under you and now your ass is on the cold, cold ground.

The question is - what are you going to use all your education for? Will your math classes help when you are tallying up the dead old ladies in a napalmed village? Four years of college to shoot a 15 year old Vietnamese boy in the face?

You DO have an alternative. You can say NO. Practice saying it aloud. It sounds good and it does something fine for your viscera. It's a word free men say often.

If you decide that it's a word that suits you, if you decide you won't knuckle under, then contact:

THE FOLLOWING PASSAGES ARE DIRECT QUOTES FROM "MANPOWER CHANNELING" ISSUED BY THE SELECTIVE SERVICE SYSTEM IN 1965.

CHANNELING:
"Selective Service processes do not compel people by edict as in foreign systems to enter pursuits having to do with essentiallity and progress. They go because they know that by going they will be deferred."

"The psychology of granting wide choice under pressure to take action is the American or indirect way of achieving what is done by direction in foreign countries where choice is not permitted. Here choice is limited but not denied...."

"The club of induction has been used to drive (individuals) out of areas considered to be less important to the areas of greater importance in which deferments are given...."

DEFERMENTS:
"Deferments are granted, however, in a realistic atmosphere so that the fullest of channeling will be felt, rather than be terminated by military service at too early a time."

OCCUPATIONAL DEFERMENTS:
"Since occupational deferments are granted for no more than one year at a time, a process of periodically receiving current information and repeated review assures that every deferred registrant continues to contribute to the overall national good. This reminds him of the basis for his deferment."

STUDENT DEFERMENTS:
"Many young men would not have pursued a higher education if there had not been a program of student deferment.... Throughout his career as student the pressure - the threat of loss of deferment - continues. It continues with equal intensity after graduation. His local board requires periodic reports to find out what he is up to. He is impelled to pursue his skill rather than embark upon some less important enterprise and is encouraged to apply his skill in an essential activity in the national interest. The loss of deferred status is the consequence for the individual who has acquired the skill and either does not use it or uses it in a nonessential activity.

MEDICAL DEFERMENTS:
"The psychological impact of being rejected for service in uniform is severe. The earlier this occurs in a young man's life, the sooner the beneficial effects of pressured motivation by the Selective Service System is lost. Once the label of "rejectee" is upon him all efforts at guidance by persuasion are futile. If he attempts to enlist at 17 or 18 and is rejected, then he receives virtually none of the impulsion the System is capable of giving him. If he makes no effort to enlist and as a result is not rejected until delivered for examination by the Selective Service System at about age 23, he has felt some of the pressure but thereafter is a free agent.
"This contributed to the establishment of a new classification of 1-Y. That classification reminds the registrant of his ultimate qualification to serve and preserves some of the benefit of what we call channeling."

THE INDIVIDUAL AND CHOICE:
"From the individual's viewpoint, he is standing in a room which has been made uncomfortably warm. Several doors are open, but they all lead to various forms of recognized patriotic service to the Nation. Some accept the alternative gladly - some with reluctance. The consequence is approximately the same.

"In the less patriotic and more selfish individual it engenders a sense of fear, uncertainty, and dissatisfaction which motivates him, nevertheless, in the same direction. He complains of the uncertainty which he must endure; he would like to be able to do as he pleases; he would appreciate a certain future with no prospect of military service or civilian contribution but he complies with the needs of the national health, saftey, or interest - or is denied deferment."

SERVICE:
"The meaning of the word 'service', with its former restricted application to the armed forces, is certain to become widened much more in the future. This brings with it the ever increasing problem of how to control effectively the service of individuals who are not in the armed forces."

BROTHER —

Maybe this induction order is just a sample, but if you're a senior, in the very near future, you're going to be getting a real induction order. Face up to it — the draft is closing in. Don't try to ignore it, because it won't ignore you.

THEY ARE GOING TO DRAFT YOUR BOD!

UNCLE SAM WANTS YOU, BABY

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

Do you think that you have a possibility for a deferment? Come see our expert draft couselors. They'll let you know what your chances are, and help you fight for that deferment if there is any hope at all.

Going to Canada? Our counselors have information on immigration, housing, jobs, school, etc. We'll help you get to Canada, help you gain residency there, and connect you with Canadian friends who can aid you further.

But, if you've decided that this is far enough — that you're going to stop running and take control of your own life — then surely give us a call. We of the Resistance have resolved that we will no longer cooperate with conscription in America. Join us, Brother. Stop being afraid. Become a free man.

If you have life insurance, bring a record of the insurance company's address and your policy number. Bring enough clean clothes for 3 days. Bring enough money to last 1 month for personal purchases.

This Local Board will furnish transportation, and meals and lodging when necessary, from the place of reporting to the induction station where you will be examined. If found qualified, you will be inducted into the Armed Forces. If found not qualified, return transportation and meals and lodging when necessary, will be furnished to the place of reporting.

You may be found not qualified for induction. Keep this in mind in arranging your affairs, to prevent any undue hardship if you are not inducted. If employed, inform your employer of this possibility. Your employer can then be prepared to continue your employment if you are not inducted. To protect your right to return to your job if you are not inducted, you must report for work as soon as possible after the completion of your induction examination. You may jeopardize your reemployment rights if you do not report for work at the beginning of your next regularly scheduled working period after you have returned to your place of employment.

Willful failure to report at the place and hour of the day named in this Order subjects the violator to fine and imprisonment. Bring this Order with you when you report.

If you are so far from your own local board that reporting in compliance with this Order will be a serious hardship, go immediately to any local board and make written request for transfer of your delivery for induction, taking this Order with you.

In just a few days we will be graduating from UCLA. We are graduating from what is supposed to be an institution of higher learning, a center for intellectual freedom and expression, and a school for human development. Yet, we all know that the University is a center for war research and development, an institution in which the professors live off Defense Department and State Department contracts, and a school in which our brains are really being trained to produce the weapons and strategies of future wars and "pacification programs." Further, we also know that the University maintains an entire bureaucratic complex, the Office of Special Services, that fulfills the purpose of allowing the draft board to keep track of us.

And, the world that we graduate into is far from peaceful. There are now 3 1/2 million American troops spread around the world, ready to kill for peace. Those of us who are men face the prospect of being conscripted into the military to join in pacifying Vietnamese villages with napalm, or American urban ghettos with machine guns.

It is in order to express our disatisfaction with University complicity in the war, and the draft, in order to voice our discontent with a world of suffering, fighting and death, and in order to state our protest against our imminent conscription into the war machine that we members of the 1968 graduating class of UCLA do now step forward.

Because Commencement is the point at which the University transfers our trained minds to a society that survives on a war economy and a war technology and our bodies to the military machine of such a society, we will also use this time to voice our protest.

We will express our opposition to the war in Viet Nam by remaining seated during the singing of the National Anthem.

We will express our opposition to University complicity in the war, the draft, and racism by remaining seated during the singing of "Hail to the Hills of Westwood" and the Benediction.

We will demonstrate our desire for the attainment of a peaceful society and a peace economy by wearing peace armbands.

We ask all graduating seniors to join us in the expression of our views by remaining seated during the singing of the National Anthem and the Alma Mater, and by wearing a peace armband over the left sleeve of your commencement gown.

On Sunday, June 9 at 2 PM in the A-level lounge of the Student Union there will be a meeting to work out the final details for making this commencement a meaningful one. We invite you to join us at this meeting. Here's hoping to see you then.

BROTHER —

Maybe this induction order is just a sample, but if you're a senior, in the very near future, you're going to be getting a real induction order. Face up to it — the draft is closing in. Don't try to ignore it, because it won't ignore you.

THEY ARE GOING TO DRAFT YOUR BOD!

UNCLE SAM WANTS YOU, BABY

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

Do you think that you have a possibility for a deferment? Come see our expert draft couselors. They'll let you know what your chances are, and help you fight for that deferment if there is any hope at all.

Going to Canada? Our counselors have information on immigration, housing, jobs, school, etc. We'll help you get to Canada, help you gain residency there, and connect you with Canadian friends who can aid you further.

But, if you've decided that this is far enough — that you're going to stop running and take control of your own life — then surely give us a call. We of the Resistance have resolved that we will no longer cooperate with conscription in America. Join us, Brother. Stop being afraid. Become a free man.

Yours in peace,

The Resistance

a Word to Seniors

THE SELECTIVE SERVICE HAS SOMETHING SPECIAL TO SAY TO YOU:
"TOUGH SHIT, BABY. WE'LL BE SEEING YOU SOON."

If you are a Senior this year, there will be no grad school deferment for you. Those deferments have been reserved for doctors, dentists, veterinarians, osteopaths, optometrists, and ministerial students.

A Senior who sneaks into grad school anyhow, won't even be allowed to take a I-S if he's had a II-S since July of 1967.

That same II-S means that your draft board won't give you a deferment if your wife (much less your girl friend) has a baby.

As for conscientious objector claims, though they might mean a better chance for acquittal in court, they are being turned down by draft boards at the rate of 96 out of 100.

And, to make the picture complete, all occupational deferments have been delivered up to the total whim of your draft board.

Unless you have something fancy in reserve: a medical defect or a hardship situation (and they better be heavy) your B.A. is going to be a re-requisite for nothing but a P.F.C.

This summer, you'll be as vulnerable as a 20 year old shipping clerk. Congress, in an exceptionally nasty mood, has pulled the college cushion out from under you and now your ass is on the cold, cold ground.

The question is - what are you going to use all your education for? Will your math classes help when you are tallying up the dead old ladies in a napalmed village? Four years of college to shoot a 15 year old Vietnamese boy in the face?

You DO have an alternative. You can say NO. Practice saying it aloud. It sounds good and it does something fine for your viscera. It's a word free men say often.

If you decide that it's a word that suits you, if you decide you won't knuckle under, then contact:

THE FOLLOWING PASSAGES ARE DIRECT QUOTES FROM "MANPOWER CHANNELING" ISSUED BY THE SELECTIVE SERVICE SYSTEM IN 1965.

CHANNELING:
"Selective Service processes do not compel people by edict as in foreign systems to enter pursuits having to do with essentiallity and progress. They go because they know that by going they will be deferred."

"The psychology of granting wide choice under pressure to take action is the American or indirect way of achieving what is done by direction in foreign countries where choice is not permitted. Here choice is limited but not denied...."

"The club of induction has been used to drive (individuals) out of areas considered to be less important to the areas of greater importance in which deferments are given...."

DEFERMENTS:
"Deferments are granted, however, in a realistic atmosphere so that the fullest of channeling will be felt, rather than be terminated by military service at too early a time."

OCCUPATIONAL DEFERMENTS:
"Since occupational deferments are granted for no more than one year at a time, a process of periodically receiving current information and repeated review assures that every deferred registrant continues to contribute to the overall national good. This reminds him of the basis for his deferment."

STUDENT DEFERMENTS:
"Many young men would not have pursued a higher education if there had not been a program of student deferment.... Throughout his career as student the pressure - the threat of loss of deferment - continues. It continues with equal intensity after graduation. His local board requires periodic reports to find out what he is up to. He is impelled to pursue his skill rather than embark upon some less important enterprise and is encouraged to apply his skill in an essential activity in the national interest. The loss of deferred status is the consequence for the individual who has acquired the skill and either does not use it or uses it in a nonessential activity.

MEDICAL DEFERMENTS:
"The psychological impact of being rejected for service in uniform is severe. The earlier this occurs in a young man's life, the sooner the beneficial effects of pressured motivation by the Selective Service System is lost. Once the label of "rejectee" is upon him all efforts at guidance by persuasion are futile. If he attempts to enlist at 17 or 18 and is rejected, then he receives virtually none of the impulsion the System is capable of giving him. If he makes no effort to enlist and as a result is not rejected until delivered for examination by the Selective Service System at about age 23, he has felt some of the pressure but thereafter is a free agent.
"This contributed to the establishment of a new classification of 1-Y. That classification reminds the registrant of his ultimate qualification to serve and preserves some of the benefit of what we call channeling."

THE INDIVIDUAL AND CHOICE:
"From the individual's viewpoint, he is standing in a room which has been made uncomfortably warm. Several doors are open, but they all lead to various forms of recognized patriotic service to the Nation. Some accept the alternative gladly - some with reluctance. The consequence is approximately the same.

"In the less patriotic and more selfish individual it engenders a sense of fear, uncertainty, and dissatisfaction which motivates him, nevertheless, in the same direction. He complains of the uncertainty which he must endure; he would like to be able to do as he pleases; he would appreciate a certain future with no prospect of military service or civilian contribution but he complies with the needs of the national health, saftey, or interest - or is denied deferment."

SERVICE:
"The meaning of the word 'service', with its former restricted application to the armed forces, is certain to become widened much more in the future. This brings with it the ever increasing problem of how to control effectively the service of individuals who are not in the armed forces."

WE R[illegible]USE OCTOBER 16 & DEC[illegible]BER 4

OUR THIRD ONE OCTOBER 1967 A.D. PALO ALTO, CALIFORNIA

Early in September I attended a conference in Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, as one of a 40-member American delegation meeting with delegations of the Democratic Republic of of Vietnam and of the National Front for Liberation of South Vietnam. This conference grew out of some visits Americans have made to Hanoi in the last year. These Americans felt their work in this country benefited from the perspective and inspiration gained by meeting the Vietnamese, and that this was an experience which more activists in the radical and peace movements of America should share.

If my experience in Bratislava is any reflection of what the American delegation learned, then the prediction of the conference organizers of the importance of the meeting was true. The liberated zones in America are small and scattered. They are inhabited by persons who are exhausted from our apparently futile skirmishes with the authorities, or are fatigued by wrenching themselves from the tentacles of a very sick society. People talk of an underground, leaving the country, heading for the hills; take flight to Leninism, Maoism, and liberalism. Almost no one takes concrete steps of resisting or of building a movement which could change America.

At lunch one day in Bratislava I described this landscape to two Vietnamese from the North. They were concerned that I be able to see beyond the despair which fences us in, and they were appreciative that I would be honest enough to talk about our problems as well as the signs of life in America. Le Tan, a journalist, thought for a moment before replying, then said, "You know that forty years ago in my country our situation was very similar. Many Vietnamese students and intellectuals committed suicide and there were few people who had any hope at all. But small resistances to the French occurred, and these gradually gave a few more people hope. Many people in the early days were imprisoned or killed, but the numbers of people and determination to resist grew as more examples of strength could be seen. This was the beginning of the movement you now see, resisting still, only now the Americans in the South. Without the courage and will of those who began resisting forty years ago, our movement may never have been started."

Most of the eight days of conference were spent in formal sessions beginning with a report by the American delegation on the political outlook of the country and the position of the peace movement within it. On the second day of these sessions I gave a report on the Resistance. The report was received enthusiastically by the Vietnamese, and in fact during a boat ride on the Danube a few days later, one of the NFL delegates pinned the emblem of the South Vietnamese Liberation Army on my jacket as a gesture of support for the Resistance. Pham Thant Van, a schoolteacher who lives outside Saigon, offered to arrange for the South Vietnamese Liberation Student Union to send us a message of solidarity on October 16.

The National Front for Liberation's report followed the Americans'. Just three days prior to the Bratislava meeting, the NFL had released its new political program in South Vietnam. Madame Nguyen Thi Binh, a member of th[illegible]e of the Front, [illegible]poke for the South Vietnamese delegation during its formal presentation, and explained and military position in South Vietnam. They go so far as to say that they had accomplished a military victory there, and that politically they are currently governing (administering schools, health facilities, land redistribution, and leading the people in fighting) at least 80% of the land area and two-thirds of the population of South Vietnam. Many of the contested areas are virtually under their control as ARVN troops can come by day but must leave by nightfall. The NFL has now such wide support from the working class in Saigon that the Saigon police and army do not enter three or four districts of the city.

The Front's claim to military victory arises from their conviction that the United States cannot win in South Vietnam, as well as from their own victories and mass support. Taken together, the arguments for their inevitable victory are convincing. They say first that the United States is not fighting a professional army byt rather an entire population. That the spirit of the South Vietnamese people resisting the might of American technology is superior to our force is exemplified in the reaction of villagers to American planes spraying trees with toxic chemicals. After the planes pass over peasants organize themselves to go out and remove all the leaves from sprayed trees before the poison can enter the sap and permanently destroy the trees.

The war is causing suffering for all Vietnamese, not just peasants and workers. Cities in South Vietnam have become uninhabitable with the influx of American troops who cause heavy inflation, cripple local business from their homes, fighting on unfamiliar terrain and without the support of the civilian population. By forcing American troops into fighting in the style of their adversaries, they claim to have put the ground forces into a position of passivity and defense of American bases. 19% of US troops fall ill by the third or fourth day of any campaign. Morale is worse among ARVN troops and desertion is common, in one case an entire armored regiment went over the hill. The Liberation Army still gets the greater part of its equipment from US troops. The war on the ground will decide the victor in this war, and the NFL says it has defeated the American forces on the ground.

The release of the new program in the South was timed to precede the "elections" held in September. The program has basically the same social and economic policy as the previous statement issued in 1960, but differs in its confidence that the NFL is the only group in South Vietnam with the ability to put through reforms and solutions to the problems of that country. "Precisely because it represents the legitimate and most fundamental aspirations of the South Vietnamese people and is the master of the situation in South Vietnam," Madame Binh explained," the NFL both de jure and de facto, is the sole authentic representative of the South Vietnamese people and therefore, must have its decisive say in the settlement of the South Vietnamese problem."

The best expression of the spirit of Madame Binh's [illegible]

Gentlemen, who are called great, I am writing you a letter that you will perhaps read if you have time.
I have just received my draft notice to report for duty before Wednesday evening.
Gentlemen who are called great, I don't want to do it.
I am not here on earth to kill poor people.

It is not to anger you that I must tell you that wars are stupidities, the world has enough of them.
Since I was born, I have seen fathers die, I have seen mothers suffer and children cry.
Mothers have suffered so much, and others amuse themselves and live at ease despite the mud, the blood.
There are prisoners -- they have stolen their souls, they have stolen their women and all their beloved pasts.

Tomorrow I will leave, I will close my door in the face of the dead years. I will go along the roads.

eration of South Vietnam. This conference grew out of some visits Americans have made to Hanoi in the last year. These Americans felt their work in this country benefited from the perspective and inspiration gained by meeting the Vietnamese, and that this was an experience which more activists in the radical and peace movements of America should share.

If my experience in Bratislava is any reflection of what the American delegation learned, then the prediction of the conference organizers of the importance of the meeting was true. The liberated zones in America are small and scattered. They are inhabited by persons who are exhausted from our apparently futile skirmishes with the authorities, or are fatigued by wrenching themselves from the tentacles of a very sick society. People talk of an underground, leaving the country, heading for the hills; take flight to Leninism, Maoism, and liberalism. Almost no one takes concrete steps of resisting or of building a movement which could change America.

At lunch one day in Bratislava I described this landscape to two Vietnamese from the North. They were concerned that I be able to see beyond the despair which fences us in, and they were appreciative that I would be honest enough to talk about our problems as well as the signs of life in America. Le Tan, a journalist, thought for a moment before replying, then said, "You know that forty years ago in my country our situation was very similar. Many Vietnamese students and intellectuals committed suicide and there were few people who had any hope at all. But small resistances to the French occurred, and these gradually gave a few more people hope. Many people in the early days were imprisoned or killed, but the numbers of people and determination to resist grew as more examples of strength could be seen. This was the beginning of the movement you now see, resisting still, only now the Americans in the South. Without the courage and will of those who began resisting forty years ago, our movement may never have been started."

Most of the eight days of conference were spent in formal sessions beginning with a report by the American delegation on the political outlook of the country and the position of the peace movement within it. On the second day of these sessions I gave a report on the Resistance The report was received enthusiastically by the Vietnamese, and in fact during a boat ride on the Danube a few days later, one of the NFL delegates pinned the emblem of the South Vietnemese Liberation Army on my jacket as a gesture of support for the Resistance. Pham Thant Van, a schoolteacher who lives outside Saigon, offered to arrange for the South Vietnamese Liberation Student Union to send us a message of solidarity on October 16.

The National Front for Liberation's report followed the Americans'. Just three days prior to the Bratislava meeting, the NFL had released its new political program in South Vietnam. Madame Nguyen Thi Binh, a member of the Central Committee of the Front, spoke for the South Vietnamese delegation during its formal presentation, and explained the background of the program and interpreted it in terms of the future of the Front in South Vietnam. The main point she and all the Vietnamese made to us was that the Front feels a new confidence in its political and leading the people in fighting) at least 80% of the land area and two-thirds of the population of South Vietnam. Many of the contested areas are virtually under their control as ARVN troops can come by day but must leave by nightfall. The NFL has now such wide support from the working class in Saigon that the Saigon police and army do not enter three or four districts of the city.

The Front's claim to military victory arises from their conviction that the United States cannot win in South Vietnam, as well as from their own victories and mass support. Taken together, the arguments for their inevitable victory are convincing. They say first that the United States is not fighting a professional army byt rather an entire population. That the spirit of the South Vietnamese people resisting the might of American technology is superior to our force is exemplified in the reaction of villagers to American planes spraying trees with toxic chemicals. After the planes pass over peasants organize themselves to go out and remove all the leaves from sprayed trees before the poison can enter the sap and permanently destroy the trees.

The war is causing suffering for all Vietnamese, not just peasants and workers. Cities in South Vietnam have become uninhabitable with the influx of American troops who cause heavy inflation, cripple local business, and lower food stocks.

The ground offensives led by American troops have been failures, according to the NFL. They cite the sagging morale of US ground forces in a country thousands of miles a position of passivity and defense of American bases. 19% of US troops fall ill by the third or fourth day of any campaign. Morale is worse among ARVN troops and desertion is common, in one case an entire armored regiment went over the hill. The Liberation Army still gets the greater part of its equipment from US troops. The war on the ground will decide the victor in this war, and the NFL says it has defeated the American forces on the ground.

The release of the new program in the South was timed to precede the "elections" held in September. The program has basically the same social and economic policy as the previous statement issued in 1960, but differs in its confidence that the NFL is the only group in South Vietnam with the ability to put through reforms and solutions to the problems of that country. "Precisely because it represents the legitimate and most fundamental aspirations of the South Vietnamese people and is the master of the situation in South Vietnam," Madame Binh explained," the NFL both de jure and de facto, is the sole authentic representative of the South Vietnamese people and therefore, must have its decisive say in the settlement of the South Vietnamese problem."

The best expression of the spirit of Madame Binh's personality and the movement she represents is in her only half-humerous aside that "the US has said that for cessation of bombing of North Vietnam the South Vietnamese should lay down their arms, while the only reasonable reciprocation of a bombing cessation is that the South Vietnamese would cease shooting down American planes."

The confidence the NFL feels about its position is most evident in the sections of the new program that reach out to groups and individuals who have not yet joined the resistance to American aggression. Much of the future work of the Front is going to be concentrated on bringing the remaining groups into resistance. The program states "The South Vietnam National Liberation Front is prepared to invite and welcome all patriotic forces and individuals who oppose the US aggressors to join its ranks, and to shoulder together the commonduties. It proposes that any force which, for one reason or another does not adhere to its ranks, take joint action against the common enemy--the US agressors and their lackeys."

Point 12 of the new program states: "To welcome puppet officers and men and puppet officials back to the just cause, show leniency and give a humane treatment to rallied armymen and prisoners of war." More specifically it offers: "Those individuals, groups or units of the puppet army and administration who render services to the cause of fighting against US aggression for national salvation will be rewarded and entrusted with responsible jobs."

The delegation from the DRV made the last formal report. The North Vietnamese explained how their country has survived the rain of bombs which America has been delivering for over two years now. They argue that bombing can never destroy their economy because it is primarily agricultural What industry remains, has been scattered and major cities have been evacuated. Schools have also been scattered in the countryside, and have more students now than when bombing began. They claim that bombing cannot destroy their communication and transportation lines (the main vehicle of transportation in North Vietnam is the bicycle), and that they got all their equipment to Dienbienphu without transportation lines anyway. They fully expect to have Hanoi and Haiphong destroyed, but plan to rebuild them. This determination is all the more inspiring when you realize that the North Vietnamese had just accomplished a national program of reconstruction and industrialization when America began its bombing. Almost all that was built between August, 1945, the date of their revolution, and February, 1965, has been destroyed; with the exception of the North Vietnamese people and their plans to build it all over again.

Small discussions on specific questions of mutual interest followed these delegation reports. I attended several of the meetings on students and their work in the movements of our respective countries. South Vietnamese students cooperate and work with the Front. Their most important contribution is the draft resistance movement which connects with the overall resistance to the US aggression. FROM THE SAN JOSE RESISTANCE. .

San Jose, Calif. 9/15/67

The United States war machine has been used to suppress independence and social reform movements in the Philippines, Korea, Taiwan, Vietnam, Laos, Thailand, Lebanon, Guatemala, the Dominican Republic and many other countries. It supports dictatorships in most of Latin America, the Near East, Africa, and Asia. The American military is planning to intervene against popular movements in many countries in the near future-- U,S. "advisors" are already active in Peru, Bolivia, Venezuela, Columbia, Guatemala, and Brazil. The Selective Service System is an essential part of the war machine : it feeds people into the military, spurs enlistments, directs students into " essential "occupations, and acts as a powerful threat to suppress dissent.

All who oppose the immoral war in Vietnam, all who oppose conscription, all who cherish liberty at home and support freedom abroad, must act to destroy the draft.

To accept registration and carry draft cards, to apply for deferments, to submit to induction or take a job essential to "national security", is to preserve the system and allow it to distort one's life. The Selective Service System is quite concious of this:

" Throughout his career as a student , the pressure -- the threat of loss of deferment-- continues. It continues with equal intensity after graduation. His local board requires periodic reports to find out what he is up to. He is impelled to pursue his skill rather than embark upon some less important enterprise and is encouraged to apply his skill in an essential activity, in the national interest. The loss of deferred status is the consequence for the individual who acquired the skill and either does not use, or uses it on a non-essential activity. The psychology of granting wide choice under pressure is the American or indirect way of achieving what is done by direction in foreign countries where choice is not permitted." (Direct quote from Selective Service System Orientation Kit, April 1965).

The draft is grossly discriminatory: those who cannot afford to go to college, those who are denied jobs , those who are unaware of C. O. opportunities or are unable to

Dear Rodney,

This is a short sort of summary of what the Draft Resistance in Seattle has been up to for the past month or so.

Our major focus is, of course, building towards the national October 16-21st activities. We are planning to have a series of rallies and meetings, on and off the University of Washington campus, and a series of speakers -- among them Ron Young, who has been coordinating the F. O. R. Draft Program, and will be flying here directly from Prague, where he has been conferring with representatives of the National Liberation Front . On one of the days during that week, we will have have a supporting demonstration for a group of people who plan to sit-in at the Induction Center and close it down -- either symbolically or actually, depending upon how many participate.

We recently had a couple of meetings with high school people in the area and drew up a leaflet (now printed) for their use, having the names of specific persons in each high school on the leaflet, so interested students can make personal contact with them for furthur information.

The Resistance here has been seeking campus recognition at the University of Washington; we have met (predictably) with administrative stalling, but our hopes are still alive. If need be, we have a lot of friends on campus who can make trouble foe an administrative bureaucracy that violates it's own codes .

In addition to regular meetings, we have been continuing a regular program of daily leafletting at the local induction center. The response has been very good, we have managed to, on various days, get from one to eight people to go into the center with leaflets, cause a ruckus, and be duly asked to relinquish their leaflets or leave. All who oppose the immoral war in Vietnam, all who oppose conscription, all who cherish liberty at home and support freedom abroad, must act to destroy the draft.

To accept registration and carry draft cards, to apply for deferments ; to submit to induction or take a job essential to "national security", is to preserve the system and allow it to distort one's life. The Selective Service System is quite concious of this:

" Throughout his career as a student , the pressure -- the threat of loss of deferment-- continues. It continues with equal intensity after graduation. His local board requires periodic reports to find out what he is up to. He is impelled to pursue his skill rather than embark upon some less important enterprise and is encouraged to apply his skill in an essential activity, in the national interest. " (Direct quote from Selective Service System Orientation Kit, April 1965).

The draft is grossly discriminatory: those who cannot afford to go to college, those who are denied jobs, those who are unaware of C. O. opportunities or are unable to write literate philosophical treatises to obtain C. O. status(that is, the poor , the black people, the Spanish-speaking peoples), all those who suffer from the inequities of the current social order, are those who suffer most from the draft; the people who become the front line troops in America's repressive wars.

The very idea of coercing men to submit to involuntary servitude in totalitarian military organizations is obscene; when those men are forced to slaughter peasants and burn villages, the obscenity cries out to be destroyed. When all men in America are compelled to carry registration cards, when young people who protest the war are drafted, the principles of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution are mocked and misused.

We call upon all Americans to join us in resisting the draft and the war machine it serves.

DRAFT RESISTANCE A REALITY

David Zimmerman
New York Resistance

Draft resistance is becoming a reality. We are moving beyond the mere gesture of a signature on a "We wont go " statement , or the profoundly admirable, but politically ineffective martyrdom of the moral witness.

T There are two general forms of draft resistance . 1) Enough people, organized in a certain way, can immobilize the selective service mechanism for a time. 2) The young men who are actually being told to serve can simply refuse. The second is obviously the most basic. It It is the form of resistance for which we must aim in attempting to build a draft resistance movement.

In attempting to build such a movement , we must realize that correspon - ding to the two forms of resistance, there are for now , at least two sets of appro - priate tactics and strategies.. Non draft age people and draft age men presently with " safe "deferments have a role in developing the first form of resistance. The Resistance , a group which grew out of the "We won't go" statements and the draft card burnings on April 15th, has been organized for the purpose of con - fronting , disrupting, and ultimately immobilizing Selective Service. This act, however, must go beyond the merely symbolic .

Therefore, October 16th must become the "critical mass" out of which will will emerge a whole proliferation of disruptive confrontations with the war machine. This can be accomplished in a program of strategic , disruptive confrontation.

Once a process of disruptive confrontation has been initiated out of October 16th, once we have been able to draw on the campuses for commitments and manpower, then we can begin to think about more imaginative tactics. In the months after October 16th, we can intensify our organizing of non-cooperation. A group of people in the San Francisco Bay Area is organizing for a series of draft obstructive activities. We endorse this action. We simply feel that the Resistance is in no position at this time to do justice to this tactic. However, we will learn from the experience of the California people. One of the aims of the October 16th action is precisely to put us in a position in the future to organize the massive and imaginative disruption that is needed to stop the draft process. The beautiful thing about the idea is that it clearly requires the participation of , not only draft-age men who are adopting a position of non-cooperation, but also pro - vides a role in draft resistance for those who are not yet ready to give up their deferments, and for those professionals, mothers, women, etc., who consider Selective Service worthy of attack. It provides, in other words, one way of ade - quately making concrete the rather weak phrase " Support -in-Action". Acting together we can all clog up draft boards and induction centers, stop bus - [illegible] h immobilize be able to call a campus meeting after October 16th, set up a Resistance table on a semi-permanent basis, organize mass leaflettings and articles in the campus press, and speaking dates, Hopefully, what will emerge is a campus based network of draft resistance groups. We have made a start here, but the big job comes when school opens. The job is particularly important for two reasons. First, as was suggested, the first form of draft resistance will be insignificant without a campus base. Second, given the relationship of Selective Service as an institution to the war in Vietnam and especially to the garrison society in general, draft resistance provides a whole set of experiences out of which commitments to radical politics can , and will come. Some of the men who renounce their deferments will become heavily involved in community organizing projects, radicals in the professions programs etc. They will begin seriously to engage in thought and action aimed at radically changing the structure of their society.

At this point, the second and most critical form of draft resistance begins to become a reality. If we are ever to cut into the manpower pool, we must now begin reaching the second of our 'constituencies, 'the young men who are actually being called to fight and die. We of the Resistance have, for the past month, been picketing and leafletting the induction centers in Manhattan, and Brooklyn every morning. We have reached many young men about the draft and alternatives. A handful of young men have refused ind - uction, and sought our aid in their struggle as a result of this action. A group of Staten Islanders(!), seeing the picket line, has contacted us about setting up a peace group in their community. Most important , a young man approached us at Whitehall and on his initiative set up a meeting in his home with some of his friends who are worried about the draft, and their struggle in the poor community. Hopefully this will lead directly into the establishment of community based organizing projects. To some extent the initiative is ours. With this in mind, we have begun to set up resistance-oriented group counseling sessions in several presently existing community organizing projects in New York's Lower East Side. It is much too early to forecast the success of this project, but it is clear, even now, that without efforts in this direction, without a base of poor, working-class, and middle-class communities, (the " stable " communities) no program of draft resistance, or for radical change, can hope to succeed. Those interested in any form of draft resistance, must be attentive to this broader context. We in the Resistance have not devoted enough energy to this "constituency," to this broader context, and for a good reason. We haven't had the time. Planning for October 16th has absorbed our energies and resources , but after October 16th, once an organization developes, we will have to develope conceptions of community organizing, we will have to become more than a one-issue group. We are merely the first phase now. It is oriented around a specific tactic , which we think will give us some momentum, momentum for a second phase more broadly oriented around a strategy and program for radical politics. Once we have had a chance to see how the October 16th phase is playing itself out, then we will be able to give content to this second phase. If we don't , the the 16th becomes a tactic without a strategy or pro - makes our struggle relevant to those who are now being told to fight and die, begins to make the second, most important form of draft resistance a reality, begins to open up our own radical perspective beyond the issue of the draft itself.

Therefore , we of the Resistance issue this call: Draft age men: give up your deferments , talk to your brothers on the campuses, organize , and join us on October 16th. Women, professionals, businessmen, pacifists, mothers, fathers : make your support for the October 16th action vocal and visible. Join us indis - ruptively confronting the war machine during the months following October 16th. All who share our sense of urgency: let us together make draft resistance a reality .

Draft resistance is becoming a reality. We are moving beyond the mere gesture of a signature on a "We wont go " statement , or the profoundly admirable, but politically ineffective martyrdom of the moral witness.

T There are two general forms of draft resistance . 1) Enough people, organized in a certain way, can immobilize the selective service mechanism for a time. 2) The young men who are actually being told to serve can simply refuse. The second is obviously the most basic. It It is the form of resistance for which we must aim in attempting to build a draft resistance movement.

In attempting to build such a movement , we must realize that correspon - ding to the two forms of resistance, there are for now , at least two sets of appro - priate tactics and strategies. . Non draft age people and draft age men presently with " safe "deferments have a role in developing the first form of resistance. The Resistance , a group which grew out of the "We won't go " statements and the draft card burnings on April 15th, has been organized for the purpose of con - fronting , disrupting, and ultimately immobilizing Selective Service. This act, however, must go beyond the merely symbolic .

Therefore, October 16th must become the "critical mass" out of which will will emerge a whole proliferation of disruptive confrontations with the war machine. This can be accomplished in a program of strategic , disruptive confrontation.

Once a process of disruptive confrontation has been initiated out of October 16th, once we have been able to draw on the campuses for commitments and manpower, then we can begin to think about more imaginative tactics. In the months after October 16th, we can intensify our organizing of non-cooperation. A group of people in the San Francisco Bay Area is organizing for a series of draft obstructive activities. Acting together we can all clog up draft boards and induction centers, stop bus - ses, harass, disrupt, and immobilize

If this tactical sketch of the first form of draft resistance is to have any meaning , we must go to the first of our constituencies between now and October 16th. This means finding a contact now on each campus in our respective areas. Through this contact we should

With students resisting the draft forcibly in Saigon, I was inclined to feel that the Vietnamese might not take the Resistance or any non-violent resistance to the American military seriously. But throughout the conference I found in their attitude a complete refusal to say what forms of reistance are appropriate in the US. They continually encouraged us to resist according to our knowledge of American society. If they approached advice, it was usually caution. About eight Americans gave their draft cards to Madame Binh during the meeting, and she wanted to give them back because she was afraid that it was too dangerous an act for them to have taken. With a little persuasion from the eight, though, she held them.

Riding on a bus through the Czech countryside I was sitting with Xuan Oahn, a composer and member of the North Vietnamese Peace Committee, and he began talking about "adventurousness" in revolutionary thinking. The Vietnamese see armed struggle as the highest form of political struggle. The consciousness of large numbers of people must be raised to the level of supporting revolutionary acts before they are undertaken. Persons who would act prematurely will inevitably be crushed and will have no one behind them with the resolution to stand with them. This always means greater despair and the retardation of developing political consciousness. Arms by themselves do not mean revolution.

The Vietnamese, after forty years of resistance, are evenly disciplined. They sat patiently through six days of formal reports, taking notes quietly, posture impeccable. The long conference table they sat around was as neat at the end of each day's session as it had been early in the morning.

The Americans sometimes had trouble getting up on time for the morning reports. By late afternoon, arms and legs draped over tables and chairs. By dinnertime, the conference table on our side of the banquet hall looked a little like Vietnam after the Americans arrived. But Madame Binh politely congratulated us on the "simplicity" of our style of living in her closing remarks.

The NFL well deserves its name. It has not only liberated most of South Vietnam from colonialism, but is beginning to liberate people everywhere as the news of its success spreads. The example of its struggle against a society so powerful in material and technological resources that ir inspires fear in its own people, is one of the few inst instances where one can find today a restatement of the human will to live one's own life.

You can run to Canada if you like ... but you'll find the same person staring at you in the mirror when you get there. You can hide behind the deferments of the SSS if you like , and whisper a relief filled "Thank you master, " but that doesn't change the state of your servitude. We have discovered that we have no control over America, and very little over the course of our own lives. The only question that needs to be answered is , when do you revolt. The Resistance is saying that the time is now. Decide now.

Don't you see brothers .. there is no easy way out. Around the world men are fighting the oppressor. Shall we not join them now ? Or shall we continue to embrace our chains and bury ourselves in delusions of freedom ?

After much pain, we of the Resistance have found no other choice... we will fight.. if you can find the strength , open your eyes, relax, and DO IT . JOIN THE RESISTANCE !!

or any non-violent resistance to the American military seriously. But throughout the conference I found in their attitude a complete refusal to say what forms of rei tance are appropriate in the US. They continually encouraged us to resist according to our knowledge of American society. If they approached advice, it was usually caution. About eight Americans gave their draft cards to Madame Binh during the meeting, and she wanted to give them back because she was afraid that it was too dangerous an act for them to have taken. With a little persuasion from the eight, though, she held them.

Riding on a bus through the Czech countryside I was sitting with Xuan Oahn, a composer and member of the North Vietnamese Peace Committee, and he began talking about "adventurousness" in revolutionary thinking. The Vietnamese see armed struggle as the highest form of political struggle. The consciousness of large numbers of people must be raised to the level of supporting revolutionary acts before they are undertaken. Persons who would act prematurely will inevitably be crushed and will have no one behind them with the resolution to stand with them. This always means greater despair and the retardation of developing political consciousness. Arms by themselves do not mean revolution.

The Vietnamese, after forty years of resistance, are evenly disciplined. They sat patiently through six days of formal reports, taking notes quietly, posture impeccable. The long conference table they sat around was as neat at the end of each day's session as it had been early in the morning.

The Americans sometimes had trouble getting up on time for the morning reports. By late afternoon, arms and legs draped over tables and chairs. By dinnertime, the conference table on our side of the banquet hall looked a little like Vietnam after the Americans arrived. But Madame Binh politely congratulated us on the "simplicity" of our style of living in her closing remarks.

The NFL well deserves its name. It has not only liberated most of South Vietnam from colonialism, but is beginning to liberate people everywhere as the news of its success spreads. The example of its struggle against a society so powerful in material and technological resources that ir inspires fear in its own people, is one of the few inst instances where one can find today a restatement of the human will to live one's own life.

Date 6/25/68

A demonstration, in the form of a "vigil" and sponsored by "The Resistance", was observed ~~by Special Agents of the FBI~~ at the entrance to the U.S. Court House, 312 North Spring Street, Los Angeles, California, on June 17, 1968, and June 18, 1968, held "in witness of the trial of JOE MAIZLISH by the U. S. Government for the 'crime' of refusing to cooperate with the Selective Service System."

The vigil began at 7:30 a.m., June 17, 1968, with three males and one female passing out printed leaflets purportedly distributed by "The Resistance". Recipients of the leaflets were invited to join the vigil with the request anyone participating remain silent and not respond to remarks or provoctions from anyone.

The June 17, 1968, vigil continued throughout the day, at times totaling 20 persons, including five females. The participants were orderly, quiet and did not attempt to disrupt pedestrian traffic into the U.S. Court House. The vigil continued throughout the night with approximately 12 participants.

By 8:00 a.m., June 18, 1968, there were 19 persons participating in the vigil on the Spring Street side of the U.S. Court House and three males and three females on the Main Street side of the same building.

By 9:15 a.m. the number of participants had increased to approximately 35 males and 15 females, all forming a line near the front door of the Spring Street entrance to the building. Two placards, both approximately two feet by three feet were at this time first observed. One bore the inscription "We support the men who refuse to kill:"and the other bore the inscription "Life not death". Both were signed "Womens Resistance" and were held by females. A smaller poster about 10 inches by 14 inches, held by a third female, bore the handprinting "Viva Joe".

This document contains neither recommendations nor conclusions of the FBI. It is the property of the FBI and is loaned to your agency; it and its contents are not to be distributed outside your agency.

Although the participants in the vigil formed a line across the front of the building near the front door to the building, no attempt was made by anyone to prohibit persons from entering or leaving the building. The vigil was conducted orderly and without incident.

Shortly after 9:45 a.m. all participants of the vigil disbanded and entered the U. S. Court House. They went directly to the second floor and to the courtroom where the trial of JOSEPH ISRAEL MAIZLISH was scheduled to begin at 10:00 a.m. Before the appointed time, MAIZLISH appeared in the hall and told his "supporters" what to expect and that they should be quiet.

After the selection of the jury at 11:20 a.m., the persons waiting in the hall were allowed to enter the courtroom of the Honorable Judge ALBERT LEE STEPHENS, JR. All seats in the courtroom were filled with spectators, which totaled about 150, many of "hippie type". In addition, about six persons remained in the hallway for lack of additional seating in the courtroom.

The following persons were observed during the vigil or in attendance at the trial of MAIZLISH:

Reverend HARLAN IRVING WEITZEL

LOUIS JOHN VITALE, JR., also known as
Father Louis Vitale

RICHARD PROFUMO

SHERNA GLUCK

MARVIN ALLEN GLUCK

DONALD KALISH

NEIL EDWARD BROWN

DAVID BOLDUC

CHRISTIAN WINSLOW HAYDEN

BETTY HAYDEN

KAREN DELLENBACH

STANLEY ALBERT KOHLS

RICHARD CHARLES CARTER

Upon the conclusion of the jury trial of MAIZLISH, at 4:08 p.m., the spectators left the courtroom and the U. S. Court House in an orderly, quiet fashion, and departed from the grounds of the building.

~~THE RESISTANCE~~

~~A copy of the printed leaflet which was passed out in front of the U. S. Court House on June 17, 1968 and June 18, 1968, is attached.~~

As a result of the trial, Maizlish was found "guilty" and was released on his personal recognizance. Sentencing was set in U. S. District Court, Los Angeles, for August 12, 1968.

~~This document contains neither recommendations nor conclusions of the FBI. It is the property of the FBI and is loaned to your agency. It and its contents are not to be distributed outside your agency.~~

Brothers and Sisters

This vigil is being held in witness of the trial of Joe Maizlish by the U.S. government for the "crime" of refusing to cooperate with the Selective Service System. Some of us are fasting as an additional symbol of our support of Joe's non-cooperation. Many of us are also refusing cooperation with the draft and taxes for war.

If violence and exploitation are ever to end, or even be reduced, it will be because people stop supporting them in their own day-to-day lives. But our government and those of the military, the Justice Department, and the District Court who do its work, and even those of us who pay taxes on the earnings of our labor are all helping to support violence and war. And so Joe is on trial: because he will not cooperate with the system of destruction and because others insist that he comply.

The vigil will continue until nine o'clock Tuesday morning, when the trial begins. Those of us who are fasting plan to continue doing so until the conclusion of the trial.

We would be pleased to have you join us for as long as you wish. We do ask that if you join the vigil you remain silent and not respond to remarks or provocations from anyone.

Re Los Angeles airtel 7/2/68.

FOIA(b)(7) - (D) advised today that in conversation with four unidentified male individuals on the evening of 7/2/68, it was learned these individuals were from San Francisco and had been part of the Resistance "caravan" which totaled approximately 22 individuals. These persons indicated to PSI that the caravan had disbanded and many of the individuals had already returned to San Francisco for which these individuals were shortly departing.

It was indicated that the purpose of this "caravan" had been "lectures on draft resistance". According to PSI, these individuals indicated that this activity had disbanded and was not proceeding on to San Diego, California.

San Francisco should endeavor through logical sources to determine nature of this activity.

No further action contemplated by Los Angeles since same resulted in no activity in Los Angeles area.

a Word to Seniors

THE SELECTIVE SERVICE HAS SOMETHING SPECIAL TO SAY TO YOU:
"TOUGH SHIT, BABY. WE'LL BE SEEING YOU SOON."

If you are a Senior this year, there will be no grad school deferment for you. Those deferments have been reserved for doctors, dentists, veterinarians, osteopaths, optometrists, and ministerial students.

A Senior who sneaks into grad school anyhow, won't even be allowed to take a I-S if he's had a II-S since July of 1967.

That same II-S means that your draft board won't give you a deferment if your wife (much less your girl friend) has a baby.

As for conscientious objector claims, though they might mean a better chance for acquittal in court, they are being turned down by draft boards at the rate of 96 out of 100.

And, to make the picture complete, all occupational deferments have been [illegible] to the total whim of your draft board.

Unless you have something [illegible] reserve: a medical defect or a hardship situation (and they'd better be heavy) your B.A. is going to be a pre-requisite for nothing but a P.F.C.

This summer, you'll be as [illegible] as a 20 year old shipping clerk. Congress, in an exceptionally nasty mood, has pulled the college cushion out from under you and now your ass is on the cold, cold ground.

The question is - what are you going to use all your education for? Will your math classes help when you are tallying up the dead old ladies in a napalmed village? Four years of college to shoot a 15 year old Vietnamese boy in the face?

You DO have an alternative. You can say NO. Practice saying it aloud. It sounds good and it does something fine for your viscera. It's a word free men say often.

MAKE COMMENCEMENT MEANINGFUL

In just few days we will be graduating from UCLA. We are graduating from what is supposed to be an institution of higher learning, and a center for intellectual freedom and expression. Yet, we all know that the University is a center for war research and development, an institution in which the professors live off Defense Dept. and State Dept. contracts, and a school in which our brains are being trained to produce the weapons and strategies of future wars and "pacification programs." Further, we also know that the University maintains an entire bureaucratic complex, the Office of Special Services that allows the draft boards to keep track of us.

And, the world that we graduate into is far from peaceful. Those of us who are men face the prospect of being drafted into the military to join in "pacifying" Vietnamese villages with napalm, or American urban ghettos with machine guns.

It is in order to express our dissatisfaction with University complicity in the war and the draft, in order to voice our discontent with a world of killing and death, and in order to protest our imminent conscription into the war machine, that we, members of the 1968 graduating class of UCLA, do now step forward.

Because Commencement is the point at which the University transfers our trained minds to a society that survives on a war economy and technology, and our bodies to the military machine of such a society, we will also use this time to voice our protest.

We will express our opposition to the war in Vietnam by remaining seated during the National Anthem.

We will express our opposition to University complicity in the war and the draft by remaining seated during the singing of "Hail to the Hills of Westwood", and during the benediction.

We will demonstrate our desire for the attainment of a peaceful society by wearing peace armbands.

We ask all graduating seniors to join us in this expression of our views by remaining seated during the National Anthem, Alma Mater, and benediction, and by wearing a peace armband (to be passed out at the door) over the left sleve of your commencement gown.

On Sunday, June 9, at 2 PM, in the A-level lounge of the Student Union, there will be a meeting to work out the final details for making this commencement a meaningful one. We invite you to join us at this meeting. Here's hoping to see you at that time . . .

Yours in peace,
COMMITTEE FOR A MEANINGFUL COMMENCEMENT

P.S. If you would like to join in this Commencement expression of conscience, please remember that the last day to rent your cap and gown is Friday, June 7, on the third floor of the Student Union.

If you have any questions, contributions, or ideas we would like to hear from you. Please come to the meeting or call:

BROTHER —

Maybe this induction order is just a sample, but if you're a senior, in the very near future, you're going to be getting a real induction order. Face up to it — the draft is closing in. Don't try to ignore it, because it won't ignore you.

THEY ARE GOING TO DRAFT YOUR BOD!

NCLE SAM WANTS YOU, BABY

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

Do you think that you have a possibility for a deferment? Come see our expert draft counselors. They can let you know what your chances are, and help you fight for that deferment if there is any hope at all.

Going to Canada? Our counselors have information on immigration, housing, jobs, school, etc. We'll help you get to Canada, help you gain residency there, and connect you with Canadian friends who can aid you further.

But, if you've decided that this is far enough — that you're going to stop running and take control of your own life — then surely give us a call. We of the Resistance have resolved that we will no longer cooperate with conscription in America. Join us, Brother. Stop being afraid. Become a free man.

Yours in peace,

The Resistance

SELECTIVE SERVICE NO.

The President of the United States,

To

GREETING:

You are hereby ordered for induction into the Armed Forces of the United States, and to report at ....

(Place of reporting)

on .... at ....
(Date) (Hour)

for forwarding to an Armed Forces Induction Station.

(Member or clerk of Local Board)

IMPORTANT NOTICE
(Read Each Paragraph Carefully)

IF YOU HAVE HAD PREVIOUS MILITARY SERVICE, OR ARE NOW A MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL GUARD OR A RESERVE COMPONENT OF THE ARMED FORCES, BRING EVIDENCE WITH YOU. IF YOU WEAR GLASSES, BRING THEM. IF MARRIED, BRING PROOF OF YOUR MARRIAGE. IF YOU HAVE ANY PHYSICAL OR MENTAL CONDITION WHICH, IN YOUR OPINION, MAY DISQUALIFY YOU FOR SERVICE IN THE ARMED FORCES, BRING A PHYSICIAN'S CERTIFICATE DESCRIBING THAT CONDITION, IF NOT ALREADY FURNISHED TO YOUR LOCAL BOARD.

Valid documents are required to substantiate dependency claims in order to receive basic allowance for quarters. Be sure to take the following with you when reporting to the induction station. The documents will be returned to you. (a) FOR LAWFUL WIFE OR LEGITIMATE CHILD UNDER 21 YEARS OF AGE—original, certified copy or photostat of a certified copy of marriage certificate, child's birth certificate, or a public or church record of marriage issued over the signature and seal of the custodian of the church or public records; (b) FOR LEGALLY ADOPTED CHILD—certified court order of adoption; (c) FOR CHILD OF DIVORCED SERVICE MEMBER (Child in custody of person other than claimant)—(1) Certified or photostatic copies of receipts from custodian of child evidencing serviceman's contributions for support, and (2) Divorce decree, court support order or separation order; (d) FOR DEPENDENT PARENT—affidavits establishing that dependency.

Bring your Social Security Account Number Card. If you do not have one, apply at nearest Social Security Administration Office. If you have life insurance, bring a record of the insurance company's address and your policy number. Bring enough clean clothes for 3 days. Bring enough money to last 1 month for personal purchases.

This Local Board will furnish transportation, and meals and lodging when necessary, from the place of reporting to the induction station where you will be examined. If found qualified, you will be inducted into the Armed Forces. If found not qualified, return transportation and meals and lodging when necessary, will be furnished to the place of reporting.

You may be found not qualified for induction. Keep this in mind in arranging your affairs, to prevent any undue hardship if you are not inducted. If employed, inform your employer of this possibility. Your employer can then be prepared to continue your employment if you are not inducted. To protect your right to return to your job if you are not inducted, you must report for work as soon as possible after the completion of your induction examination. You may jeopardize your reemployment rights if you do not report for work at the beginning of your next regularly scheduled working period after you have returned to your place of employment.

Willful failure to report at the place and hour of the day named in this Order subjects the violator to fine and imprisonment. Bring this Order with you when you report.

If you are so far from your own local board that reporting in compliance with this Order will be a serious hardship, go immediately to any local board and make written request for transfer of your delivery for induction, taking this Order with you.

U.S. GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE : 1965 O—785-193

THE FOLLOWING PASSAGES ARE DIRECT QUOTES FROM "MANPOWER CHANNELING" ISSUED BY THE SELECTIVE SERVICE SYSTEM IN 1965.

CHANNELING:
"Selective Service processes do not compel people by edict as in foreign systems to enter pursuits having to do with essentiallity and progress. They go because they know that by going they will be deferred."

"The psychology of granting wide choice under pressure to take action is the American or indirect way of achieving what is done by direction in foreign countries where choice is not permitted. Here choice is limited but not denied...."

"The club of induction has been used to drive (individuals) out of areas considered to be less important to the areas of greater importance in which deferments are given...."

DEFERMENTS:
"Deferments are granted, however, in a realistic atmosphere so that the fullest of channeling will be felt, rather than be terminated by military service at too early a time."

OCCUPATIONAL DEFERMENTS:
"Since occupational deferments are granted for no more than one year at a time, a process of periodically receiving current information and repeated review assures that every deferred registrant continues to contribute to the overall national good. This reminds him of the basis for his deferment."

STUDENT DEFERMENTS:
"Many young men would not have pursued a higher education if there had not been a program of student deferment.... Throughout his career as student the pressure - the threat of loss of deferment - continues. It continues with equal intensity after graduation. His local board requires periodic reports to find out what he is up to. He is impelled to pursue his skill rather than embark upon some less important enterprise and is encouraged to apply his skill in an essential activity in the national interest. The loss of deferred status is the consequence for the individual who has acquired the skill and either does not use it or uses it in a nonessential activity.

MEDICAL DEFERMENTS:
"The psychological impact of being rejected for service in uniform is severe. The earlier this occurs in a young man's life, the sooner the beneficial effects of pressured motivation by the Selective Service System is lost. Once the label of "rejectee" is upon him all efforts at guidance by persuasion are futile. If he attempts to enlist at 17 or 18 and is rejected, then he receives virtually none of the impulsion the System is capable of giving him. If he makes no effort to enlist and as a result is not rejected until delivered for examination by the Selective Service System at about age 23, he has felt some of the pressure but thereafter is a free agent.
"This contributed to the establishment of a new classification of 1-Y. That classification reminds the registrant of his ultimate qualification to serve and preserves some of the benefit of what we call channeling."

THE INDIVIDUAL AND CHOICE:
"From the individual's viewpoint, he is standing in a room which has been made uncomfortably warm. Several doors are open, but they all lead to various forms of recognized patriotic service to the Nation. Some accept the alternative gladly - some with reluctance. The consequence is approximately the same,

"In the less patriotic and more selfish individual it engenders a sense of fear, uncertainty, and dissatisfaction which motivates him, nevertheless, in the same direction. He complains of the uncertainty which he must endure; he would like to be able to do as he pleases; he would appreciate a certain future with no prospect of military service or civilian contribution but he complies with the needs of the national health, saftey, or interest - or is denied deferment."

SERVICE:
"The meaning of the word 'service', with its former restricted application to the armed forces, is certain to become widened much more in the future. This brings with it the ever increasing problem of how to control effectively the service of individuals who are not in the armed forces."

PORT ANGELES, WASHINGTON

She indicated that it had been so long since she had observed the two individuals questioned that all she could say was the individual in the photograph might resemble in physical features, indicating size, narrow face, etc. the person in question but could not positively state that the photograph was the individual residing in her motel as GREG ROBB.

A check of the motel records revealed that the city in which NANCY HARPER resided was Seattle.

An attempt to determine the motel telephone records the long distance from the motel telephone records, the long distance telephone number in Los Angeles was negative.

Mrs. CHERPESKE advised that she maintains her telephone records only until she has received the telephone company bill at which time she destroys them and therefore this number cannot be obtained from the motel.

Date June 26, 1968

ROY IRVIN MAGERKAURTH, Marine Serial Number 2370344, Schools Battalion, was interviewed.

At the outset of the interview, prior to any questioning, MAGERKAURTH stated "I remember that guy's name. It's FRED ESPENSCHADE."

When questioned concerning this comment, MAGERKAURTH stated that he went on unauthorized absence from Camp Pendleton, California, on November 13, 1967, and traveled directly to Los Angeles, California, where he met FRED ESPENSCHADE. He stated that he met ESPENSCHADE through a "resistance type organization" and with the aid of this organization traveled with FRED ESPENSCHADE to Regina, Saskatchewan Canada.

MAGERKAURTH advised that he was previously interviewed by FBI Agents regarding this matter but at the time of interview was unable to recall the address of the "resistance type organization" in Los Angeles, California. He advised that upon pondering the matter in his mind, he believes the address of the organization is 123 or 143 Broxton Avenue, Los Angeles, California. He advised that the organization occupies an office in a large red brick building which is situated near the University of California at Los Angeles. He further advised that situated across the street from the organization's office is a Rexall Drug Store.

At the conclusion of the interview, a series of the following photographs were displayed to MAGERKAURTH whereon he identified the photograph of FREDERICK ESPENSCHADE as the individual who accompanied him with the assistance of the resistance organization from Los Angeles, California, to Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada:

AT HULL, CANADA

On March 29, 1968, FREDERICK WAYNE ESPENSCHADE, FOIA(b)(7) - (D) when found in a stolen car in Hull, Canada. During this interview, ESPENSCHADE related the following:

ESPENSCHADE advised that he had been residing with his parents at 373 Harboard Street, Rexburg, Idaho. Only about eight persons per year from the State of Idaho join the U. S. Marines, so he felt that he would gain some sort of recognition if he enlisted in the Marine Corps. He enlisted in the U. S. Marines on the express condition that he be a tank mechanic. Shortly after enlistment, however, he was transferred to Advanced Reconnaissance. He claimed that the average life in Vietnam of a member of an Advanced Reconnaissance patrol was approximately five months. Because of this, he wanted no part of the Marine Corps and deserted on three different occasions. He was arrested by M. P.s in Los Angeles and returned to his unit to spend various periods of time in the brig. On the third occasion he was arrested by the Military Police at his home and given Stragglers Orders which, in effect, orders him to return to his unit within 24 hours. This he refused to do and joined the "hippie" colony in Los Angeles. While in Los Angeles, he learned of what he called the Underground Resistance Organization to the War in Vietnam who helped young people leave the country and supplied them with false identification and money. He contacted this organization and was hidden in a cabin in the hills outside of Los Angeles with five or six other people like himself. ESPENSCHADE claimed that he could not recall the names of anyone who first brought him this information or the names of anyone connected therewith, however, he did supply the address, 131 Brockston Street, Westwood, Los Angeles, as being a contact point for the draft resistance. While with this resistance group he was supplied with a false Los Angeles Waterworks Driver's Card and a false draft card in the name of GREG ROBB. He drove a truck for a short time for the Los Angeles Waterworks while waiting exit from the country. Early in January 1968, the Resistance Organization provided him with about $40.00 and he left for Canada with another Marine deserter named DON NICKOLS (?). In Seattle, Washington, he obtained a Western Airline identification card which he completed in the name of GREG ROBB and changed his birth date to April 8, 1947. He entered at Victoria, B. C., stating that he would be staying only three or four days. He was not asked by the Immigration Officer to produce any identification. ESPENSCHADE, NICKOLS and an unknown girl that they had picked up in Seattle, spent three or four days in the Alcazar Motel in Vancouver. They then left the girl and travelled by train to Saskatchewan. Before leaving Vancouver, however, they had sent a wire to the Underground via the Draft Resistance address in Los Angeles and were wired $50.00 to help them on their way. When they reached Regina, NICKOLS advised that he was returning to the United States and ESPENSCHADE believes that he did. Before entering Canada, ESPENSCHADE claims to have destroyed the Los Angeles Waterworks Driver's Card and the draft card.

AT LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

On June 5, 1968, the Federal Grand Jury sitting at Los Angeles, California returned a true bill indictment charging WILLIAM DAVID GARAWAY with a violation of Title 50, U. S. C. Appendix, Section 462, in that he failed to report for induction into the armed forces on March 12, 1968.

RECOMMENDATION

Copies are being furnished Milwaukee, Los Angeles, Sacramento, San Diego, San Francisco, and Seattle because of the interest of these offices in Draft Resistance Union.

Buffalo file.

Buffalo, New York
June 16, 1968

This is a report concerning a general meeting of the Draft Resistance Union held on Saturday, May 18, 1968, at 937 West Ferry Street, Buffalo, New York, the Draft Resistance Union Center.

There were approximately 15 to 20 individuals present at this meeting. The meeting was chaired by Bill Yates and primarily Larry Faulkner. Some people noticed at this meeting were:

Don Sullivan

Bill Yates

Carl Ratner

John Marciano

Eleanor Lerner

Bill Mayrl

Mark Schnieder

Lawrence Faulkner

A person by the name of Dave, who was approximately 5'8" tall, with brown hair, thin
build and wearing a mustache

A high school girl by the name of Rosemary from
Amherst Central High School

Larry Faulkner began this meeting with a statement that as far as he was concerned, he felt the Draft Resistance Union was now reasonably on the road to success and pretty well on its feet. He said they were just completing the second course in Draft counselling and would have hopefully some people available during the summer for the counselling program. He then stated the treasury could be in better shape and asked for a general report on the treasury. This was given by Don Sullivan who was the Treasurer. He stated there was about $150 left in the treasury bank account, but this would not last very long because of payments, such as rent, that must be met. Then a discussion centered around the treasury report and what programs might be instituted to help raise funds. Larry Faulkner stated That the appeals ~~that~~ which had earlier been sent to the faculty concerning funds were not coming through, as they had hoped. He said they were relying on the faculty for continuous, dependable support so that they could carry on the counselling activities.

Larry Faulkner next brought up the subject of how the Resistance Union was going to be run. He felt that an Executive Committee should be formed. He stated as of now, several members, including he, himself, Bill Yates, Bill Mayrl, and several others, have been carrying on all the work of the Resistance Union. He wanted to know from the group if they thought it would be okay to continue with this group, only to form an Executive Committee which would be able to help formulate policy and handle other matters, such as initiating programs to raise funds and so forth over the summer to help the fall activities. Everybody seemed to be generally in accord with this proposition. The Executive Committee members were then chosen. Those that would be on the Executive Committee for the Draft Resistance Union would be the following:

Lawrence Faulkner
Don Sullivan
Bill Yates
Carl Ratner

Perhaps, some more members would be added to the Committee, according to Faulkner, as more people became interested and involved in Resistance activities.

The next item on the agenda was that pertaining to programs of the Resistance Union. Faulkner stated that the primary aim and goal of the Draft Resistance Union is not Draft counselling in itself. He stated although Draft counselling is a vital and important facet of the Union, its primary interest is politizing. Faulkner stated comprehensive files were being assembled in the Resistance Union Office not only of people coming in for counselling but also of things that were happening with respect to Resistance activities. This would include material from other centers such as those in Madison, Wisconsin; Seattle, Washington; and various cities in California. Faulkner stated with all this material assembled, they should have much important information at their disposal when it was needed in terms of their political activities.

Faulkner stated the Resistance Union, in itself, is conceived as primarily an off-campus activity. He said campus activities were important, but this was one function that was to try to reach out into the community and to begin the attempt to politize the community toward politics of the New Left and also to educate them on what they consider to be the wrongs of the present society. He went on further to state that this was going to take on many forms. He said that programs would be initiated with high school groups and for anybody who wished to take advantage of the services offered by the Resistance Union, they would have the Union Center open. This would be open on Saturdays solely for the use of high school groups wishing to hold meetings and to discuss politics with regard to their own schools and activities they might carry on in their schools in terms of Draft resistance and political activities.

Faulkner next stated that work was progressing along fairly well on the center although during the last week or so it had slowed down considerably. He stated there was still some painting to be done and that there was quite a bit of new construction that was proposed for the interior aside from the one office already situated beyond the reading room and another counselling office was to be installed. It was hoped that they would be able to accomplish this during the summer. The remaining back room space would be taken up for work activities and large group meetings.

Faulkner said the last thing he wanted to take into consideration was summer activities in terms of counselling. He said so far they thought they would be able to keep the center open during the week in summer hopefull from 3:00 in the afternoon until 9:00 at night. It was not know whether they could keep the center open on weekends because of the shortage of people since people were going home for vacation and so forth. People were asked to sign a sheet of paper if they were going to be in the area during the summer months and Faulkner said they would be contacted with regard to their being available for counselling during the summer.

Shortly after the discussion of this and some other topics, the meeting was adjourned.

New York, N.Y. 10021

Dear sir:

Please accept my check for $10.00 for a six month trial subscription to your magazine. As a high school and evening junior college instructor in the Los Angeles City Schools, I have observed the acceleration of operations of the "new" left ~~organizations~~ groups and find myself in need of the kind of research and objective reports which your publication seems to offer.

I recently dropped out of the American Federation of Teachers, Local 1021, here in Los Angeles because of leadership activity in support and cooperation with the so-called "Peace" movement and their backing of attempts to organize Mexican-American young people along the directions of the Black Panther Party. This movement is, I believe still active although several people are under indictment for conspiracy (a misdemeanor) to plan the high school walk-outs in the East Side, Mexican-American areas. Any past information about this operation, or about

Sal Castro, the teacher most active in this, would be of great interest to me. It is my private opinion, which I cannot document at this time that our local has been more-a-less captured by a left "activist" faction. It is my intention to become much better informed on these developments so that I can be more effective in counteracting the great influence being exerted, particularly upon our brighter young people, by pro-Communist, anti-American factions. It is hard to over-estimate the energy with which they are pursuing their activities through the so-called Underground Press, through the S.D.S. and other campus groups and through the Peace Action Council, which I believe sponsors the Resistance, so called.

Although I am not prepared to become panicked, I do believe that the general difficulty of understanding the Vietnamese War and the sympathy of the young with the predicament of the American Negro has left openings of unprecedented magnitude to the Marxist stategists. And, as your publication indicates, they are much more flexible than in the past, hence more dangerous and effective.

I have a son now serving at Nha Trang, Republic of Vietnam, and feel some compulsion to do what

I can here to see that the sacrifices our sons have made in Vietnam are not totally undermined by the homefront communists nor by their unwitting allies, the home-front racists.

As a teacher and as a writer, I am in a position to influence opinion and welcome the opportunity to get information on Communist operations from an educated and sophisticated source, which is conscious of the necessity to maintain a non-partisan and factual, non-propogandistic approach.

Please accept my sincere appreciation for the work you are doing; I wish I had known about your publication earlier.

Very sincerely,

Re San Diego airtel to Bureau, 7/26/68.

FOIA(b)(7) - (D) advised on 8/1/68 that he has discussed this matter with FOIA(b)(7) - (D) FOIA(b)(7) - (D) a member of The Resistance, on this date. Source stated that FOIA(b)(7) - (D) advised that the organization could not stimulate enough interest in a demonstration at Camp Pendleton on behalf of the Marine who is incarcerated at Camp Pendleton, California and that the demonstration which had been planned for 8/2/68 is therefore being canceled.

FOIA(b)(7) - (D) advised source that in addition they had a conversation with the attorney representing the Marine, and that the attorney said that a demonstration would not be the best thing for his client and therefore, discouraged it. The attorney advised FOIA(b)(7) - (D) FOIA(b)(7) - (D) to have members of the organization write the Commanding Officer, Camp Pendleton and protest by letter instead of having a demonstration at Camp Pendleton.

In view of the fact that plans for this proposed demonstration have been canceled this matter is being considered closed in the San Diego Division.

Information Learned

Date- July 7, [redacted]8

Location- P.A.C. office, 535 North Western, L.A.

Information learned from FOIA(b)(7) - (D)

1. "that one of the many things that Irving Sarnoff is planning for the picket, to take place on Wed., July 10th at 7 p.m., is that all doorways and hall entrances to the Palladium will be blocked off entirely, by many persons."

2. The Kaleidoscope, across the street from the Palladium, will have it's facilities open between 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. Signs and instructions will be available from Monitors or in front of the Kaleidoscope entrance.

3. "That Irving Sarnoff and Professor Don Kalish have to "play it" to the police that they want the police there, to help maintain"law and order" and"not tell them what their plans really are" or"else the police wouldn't let them near the Palladium at all, and try to stop them 2 or 3 blocks away from the Palladium and hold them back there." (Prof. Kalish had been on a radio station interview, last week, saying that they do want the police to keep law and order, and therefore are asking their help in doing so, for without law and order, what is a country, that it would be it'd downfall and ruination, without it.")

Note: This statement on the interview was given by Hedy Kasoff, who was against Kalish in wanting to keep law and order.(Per telephone call with Rose Mathews).

4. Tom Meeks, delegate from the Young Democrats and another young gentleman, came in and paid a $10 initiation fee, as new members, and wanted to see Irving Sarnoff. Some matter dealing with what plans the P.A.C. and A.C.L.U. have for the July 10 picket at the Palladium. Minna told him that Irving had called a special meeting, this evening(July 7) for further planning, and to come back around 7 p.m. since he was now a delegate. Tom said it was very important, he had to see Irving before the 10th.

5. On the D.A.C. boycott, at the Biltmore

Hotel, July 11, P.A.C. wasn't planning on taking any part, as most persons work. However, the D.A.C., S.D.S., Resistance, and any others who didn't have to work that day, would be taking part, in picketing the Biltmore.(12 noon).

6. 8000 leaflets had been mailed by P.A.C., 8000 more made up for leafletting, and 15,000 more to be printed up today.(D.A.C. had made up 4000.) The P.A.C. mailing and printing expenses came to $800 alone, without signs and other expenses. Minna said that from what Irving said, there would be as many as the June 23,(last year) demo. at the Century Plaza(Century City) if not more.

Michael Greene
Bruce Polichar
Sam Rosenwein
Ralph Helge
Mr. Reese (ph.)
Robert Schmorleitz
Aubrey Grossman
Phillip Goar
David Sachs
David Finkel
Peter Marx
Jeff Carter

Smith conducted the meeting.

Greene discussed the collage case with the group and seperately with Sam Rosenwein, whom he asked for advice.

Greene advised that a member of the federal indigent panel (not further identified) turned over to him a selective service case. According to Greene, the attorney did not like selective service cases, did not know selective service law, and would probably plead him guilty. Greene said he took the case. The man was later rejected for medical reasons. Greene said he handled the case without fee. Greene said that after a number of such cases, a fee will be asked from the government.

Aubrey Grossman, head of a selective service committee, in San Francisco, commented on the Brede case, a Jehovah Witness case, docket number 21928, Ninth circuit, San Francisco. According to Grossman, the issue in this case is the failure of the members of the local board to pass on the issuance of an order for the defendant to report for alternative civilian duty. In this particular case, a board clerk issued the order. According to Grossman, this case is important because it could set a precedent which could invalidate all cases in which board members failed to pass on induction orders. Based on this case, Grossman felt a writ could be obtained to release several people already incarcerated.

Smith discussed the possibility of filing a suit either under the civil rights act, or a suit dealing with malpractice, or both against physcians at the induction center. He advised that there were about 20 cases documented in which individuals were certified both physically and mentally fit and later found unfit for duty. According to Smith, there is a possibility of filing a suit charging conspiracy on the part of the doctors at the induction center to deprive the inductees of their civil rights under sections 1983-1985, which are described as class actions.

It was also mentioned that Dr. Murray Abowitz and Dr. Robert Peck were considering possible slander suits against doctors at the induction center, based on some derogatory remarks allegedly made by doctors at the induction center concerning medical reports of Abowitz and Peck.

Grossman reported that there are selective service law committee groups (not to be confused with federally appointed indigent panels) in New York City, New Jersey, Boston, Chicago, Denver, Detroit, San Francisco, and one partially operative in San Diego.

Grossman said the San Francisco selective service lawyers committee received a donation of $2,500. from the Dr. Spock defense committee.

Grossman said the ACLU will attempt to develop selective service law committee groups in 15 - 20 other cities.

Grossman advised that he wrote to every chief federal judge, except those where committees are already operating, concerning selective service rights. He indicated several favorable replies.

Grossman said that before he will handle an individual draft resistance case, he insists that the individual agree to build a base of support in his community, or campus, or wherever else possible.

INcluded as part of this report are the minutes of the SSLC meeting of 6/13/68, and an announcement of a meeting July 11, 1968.

Also present in the house, but not present at this meeting were Lynn Pestana and Lee Pestana.

BEGINNINGS AND BECOMING

Studio City -- January 14, 1968

by

The Rev. Roy A. Ockert

Man's existence is an eternity of beginnings and becoming. Every day, every moment has its beginning -- and in the beginnings are the becoming. In the eternal now is encompassed what we are, what we have been, and a foreshadowing of what we shall be.

This activity -- this ongoingness -- exists in a whereless world -- a world which at best has only physical direction, not moral and not spiritual -- except as we make it so. It exists also in a world of self -- the being we have become -- and a world of selves. We are not alone even when others are not physically near us because the echoes and reverberations of their presences sound in the recesses of our minds and our beings.

In this whereless world the quality of human decision and human relationships play crucial roles --decisions and relationships that raise the question of life itself.

How do we operate in a world in which we are both master and slave -- the master who determines where we would go, and the slave who is tossed by destiny to where we are going?

Let me tell you a story -- a true story -- about young men and women who are determined to exert their mastery of fate so far as they can. Involved in the story is an institution which, for hundreds of years, has encouraged man to be man -- to strive for mastery of self.

Early last November, I was informed that I had an appointment with a young man who wished to talk about conscientious objection. I expected a youngster would come in who wanted help in drawing up his application for conscientious objector status to be presented to his draft board.

Instead, at the appointed time, two bearded men walked into my study. We sat down and it developed that they were members of a group calling themselves "The Resistance." They had a request to make. The request was that the church should provide "The Resistance" with a place where they might sponsor a Service of the Act of Conscience. They said that they would like to have a service which would be similar to that held at the Arlington Street Unitarian Church in Boston in October. What they wished, they said, was to have a service which would be religious, which would be impressive and worshipful, at which young men could register their opposition to the draft. Although some of the draft resistors might prefer to burn their cards and The Resistance did not want to forbid them from doing so, they preferred to provide a small chalice of blood in which resistors might either dip their draft cards or drop them. In addition, there would be an alternate -- empty -- chalice in which participants might put their cards.

I suggested that they contact the president of the Board of Trustees and let him know what they wanted, and that they do this before the meeting of the Board the following Wednesday, so that the Board could take up the matter and make a decision about it.

On the following Wednesday evening, shortly after the Board had begun its session, three bearded men walked into the study, and introduced themselves. I told the Board that I had met with two people, including one of the three, and what they had in mind. The three young men went into greater detail. The Board asked questions and then decided that they should have a special meeting which all members of the Board would be urged to attend and that meanwhile we could obtain advice from the legal counsel of the church and would try to find out more about what had happened in Boston.

During the succeeding days, we did contact Boston. We were told that in Boston there were no legal repercussions and that none were expected, although there might be some harrassment by governmental agencies such as the FBI. (I said that this would not be new to our church.) We also talked with the church's legal counsel.

On Sunday the Board discussed the matter at great length and finally voted unanimously to approve the use of the Auditorium by the Resistance on Monday, December 4 -- the national day of resistance. Later, I was contacted again by members of "The Resistance" and by the Rev. Harlan Weitzel, an Episcopal minister who is executive director of the Los Angeles Chapter of Clergy and Laymen Concerned About Vietnam. It was decided that Father Weitzel would have principal responsibility for finding ministers to take part in the service. The Resistance wished to make the service as ecumenical as possible. Because of the time limitations Father Weitzel had a very difficult job finding ministers who would be available at the appointed time. Meanwhile, we also worked on the preparation of the order of service. We followed that of the Arlington Street Church very closely -- making only a few changes.

On the morning of the service -- only an hour or two before it was to begin -- I received a call from the man who had been expected to give the invocation. Unfortunately, it was necessary for him to perform a funeral service for a colleague and he would not be able to be present at the service. We asked one of the other men who was taking part, a Unitarian Minister, to do the invocation.

For the service then, we had four ministers: the Rev. Richard Weston of the Whittier Unitarian Church, the Rev. Harlan Weitzel who gave the principal address, the Rev. Wayne C. Hartmire, Jr. who is director of the California migrant ministry and myself; and several young draft resistors.

There were a number of newspaper, radio and TV reporters present at the service, and TV news cameras, bright lights and tape recorders had been set up around the chancel. Shortly before the service I asked the news people to be as quiet as possible during the service itself -- to realize that this was a solemn religious event. I must say that the news people were very good about not talking. Only one of them was audible during the service, but, all in all, I think they were as quiet and unobtrusive as they could be and still do what they were there to do -- that is to obtain pictures and news of the event.

Our church organist, Waldemar Hille, played the organ while the people were gathering, and the service began with the reading of the invocation by Dick Weston.

This was followed by the hymn: "Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide" -- the hymn which we sang near the beginning of this service. I must say that the young people present at the service put more feeling into the singing than is usually heard from a congregation. After all, it is their moment to decide for the good or evil side even more than ours.

Mr. Weston then led the responsive reading: "The Young Dead Soldiers," which is a poem by Archibald MacLeish and includes the words, "The young dead soldiers do not speak. Nevertheless, they are heard in the still houses...They say: we have given our lives, but until it is finished no one can know what our lives gave. They say: our deaths are not ours, they are yours. They will mean what you make them. They say: whether our lives and our deaths were for peace and a new hope, or for nothing, we cannot say: we leave you our deaths. Give them their meaning. We were young, they say. We have died. Remember us."

"This injustice stems from the assumption that a government can both define and monitor the claims of conscience. Such an assumption is familiar and acceptable to dictatorships, but it is foreign and offensive to a democratic society.

"We deny both the right and the competence of a government to stand in judgment upon the conscience of its citizens. Yet this is precisely what our government is doing, and its incompetence at least is clear. According to the government's definition, a conscientious objector is one whose 'religious belief and training' does not include 'essentially political, philosophical, or sociological views, nor merely (a) personal code.'

"Not to believe in God may be a gross misfortune, but not automatically an ethical default. It is absurd to claim that a man must be a believer in order to be conscientious. Further, since conscience is by definition a matter of personal conviction it is meaningless to exclude a personal moral code as a basis for 'sincere and meaningful' objection. Neither can political views be excluded. Ethical decisions must be made in relation to particular events. Therefore the citizen whose conscience forbids him to participate in a particular war is as deserving of respect as a citizen whose conscience forbids him to participate in any war.

"This is a long-standing Jewish and Christian tradition. Yet the tradition we honor is not honored by our government. This fact alone should make it clear that our civil disobedience is a form of religious obedience.

"Our concern, however, is not for our religious heritage only; it is for our democracy as well. Claims of conscience have always been troublesome to governments. Man's conscience is by nature restless and independent. It cannot be chained by government regulations any more than by religious or ideological edicts. The forces of tyranny have always, and with good reason, feared the expressions of conscience and sought to suppress them.

"In a democratic society, however, in matters of conscience a government should have recourse to persuasion, not to coercion. The present Selective Service system simply does not do this and is therefore not worthy of our democracy. It represents a substitution of force for reason, an effort to obtain obedience without assent. So for both patriotic and religious reasons we are now forced to the defense of those who wish to resist the encroachment of government upon the sanctity of conscience.

"The Selective Service Act asserts that anyone 'who knowingly counsels, aids or abets another to refuse or evade registration or service in the armed forces...shall be liable to imprisonment for not more than five years or a fine of ten thousand dollars or both.'

"We hereby publicly counsel all who in conscience cannot today serve in the armed forces to refuse such service by non-violent means. We pledge ourselves to aid and abet them in any way we can. This means that if they are now arrested for failing to comply with a law that violates their consciences we too must be arrested, for in the sight of that law we are now as guilty as they.

"When true to their tradition churches and synagogues have always been sanctuaries for conscience. We therefore call upon our fellow clergy and laymen to sign this statement, to set up draft counselling centers, to do everything possible in their communities for these conscientious objectors, and to be prepared to pay whatever price may be exacted to defend the rights of conscience our government refuses to honor. As clergy and laymen we could live neither with ourselves nor with our God if today we did not keep faith with those who refuse to surrender their consciences to the state."

Then came an aspiration in which I attempted to voice our opposition to war, and our hopes for the future. The aspiration is based on a prayer by Walter Rauschenbusch, a Christian Socialist minister of several decades ago, but I have extensively revised it. You heard it this morning. To me it expresses the hopes and desires of men and women over the ages for an end to war and bloodshed -- and most particularly, those men and women who have huddled in the rooms and cellars of their homes while the hellfire of bombs, and bullets and napalm have roared about -- those men and women who have suffered the unspeakable anguish of cradling the bloody bodies of small sons and beautiful daughters, of beloved husbands and loving wives, of respected fathers and doting mothers -- those men and women who have been forced to leave ancestral homes and familiar scenes because strangers wanted to kill and to destroy on their land.

Following the aspiration there was almost a minute of silence, and then another responsive reading. This one entitled "On War." It is from the Tao-Te-Ching, attributed to the Chinese philosopher of ancient times, Lao-tzu, and it is the one you read earlier -- the one which urges you to remember that "the death of a multitude is cause for mourning" and which begs you to "conduct your triumph as a funeral."

After the responsive reading there were statements by several of the young men who are members of the Resistance -- men who were showing their opposition to war by turning in their draft cards. A long poem was read by a young man, Rick Lippman, who grew up in the First Unitarian Church of Los Angeles and who has decided to resist the draft. The poem -- read with great feeling and purpose -- elicited a strong response.

Then Wally Hille led us in singing folk songs -- folk songs concerning war, such as verses of "We Shall Overcome," and "Down by the Riverside", and while the singing was going on small bits of bread were passed out to the congregation as a meal of reconciliation.

Someone in the congregation shortly suggested that people stand and clasp hands while singing. At that moment there was a deep feeling of community in the hall -- shared I am told by all but two men identified as FBI agents.

Then came the address, a very stirring address, by the Rev. Harlan Weitzel. Unfortunately, I do not have a copy of it, so I cannot read it to you, but it closed with the statement which has been signed by many ministers and many citizens -- the statement drawn up by the Clergy and Laymen Concerned About Vietnam:

"These are times of extraordinary confusion. We are surrounded by conflicting voices advocating diverse solutions to difficelt national and international problems. Far from having all the answers, we are humbled by the complexity of events. But in the midst of confusion one thing is painfully clear: there are thousands of young Americans whose consciences forbid them to support our country's military policy by participation in the armed forces. They are now faced with a choice of either violating their consciences or being imprisoned.

"Congressional indifference to appeals for justice has convinced us that it is no longer enough to speak in defense of the rights of conscience. The time has come to act in defense of these rights. It is no longer enough to protest the injustice of the present military conscription system. The time has come to pledge active support to all who in conscience and through non-violent means decide to resist its injustice.

"We regret the misunderstanding and disorder that may be attributed to such resistance. But the fault we believe lies not with the resistance but with the injustice resisted.

They -- as we -- live in an absurd world.

Despite our longings and our strivings, our fountains of youth, our pep pills and facial surgery -- despite all -- the self of which we are aware can never truly belong to this earth. We are frustrated by the fact of time, the inevitability of death, the meaninglessness that routine so often makes of our lives.

We are frustrated by the hostile character of nature that permits smog, and fire, and flood, and earthquake.

We are frustrated by the limitations of human reason and knowledge, and by the mystery and irrationality of man's own nature.

In short, the absurdity of life lies neither in man nor in the world, but in the confrontation between what man wants and what the universe offers him. It is this confrontation which causes many men to despair of life, to withdraw from it, to become bitter or cynical and -- sometimes -- to become desperate reactionaries.

We have a strong tendency to make this confrontation between man and the universe an act of horror by our tendency to kill, to maim, and to destroy. Our bitterness, our lack of faith in man, and our innate knowledge that there is no good god above to give us guidance turn us like jackals against one another. And when we do this we destroy hope, and we destroy the last best chance man has to laugh joyously with the sun, and the stars, and the wind, and the waves of the sea -- and with one another.

I think the young men who took part in the service last December 4th are aware of this wall of absurdity. They are aware that the absurd world is not wooed by murder and destruction. They are aware that the only hope is revolt against absurdity -- revolt, even though there is no hope for ultimate triumph -- revolt, even though it will be but another of the beginnings and will have to be done again and again and again. But they are interested in what they and we are becoming.

Under the roof of that Auditorium and under the skies and sun that followed them on the march to the Old Federal Building they stoutly and peacefully asserted their revolt against the inevitable. And one of them -- a young lady with a beautiful voice -- sang songs of peace and hope, all the way from here to there.

In my dealings with members of The Resistance, I have been deeply impressed by their civilized manners, their exceptional decency, their extraordinary sensitivity. These are not young people out on a lark. They are young people deeply committed to life, and solemnly involved in revolt in order that life might continue.

And with them goes the force of reason. I do not know why they chose to have a chalice of blood in the service, but I am certain that it was a choice made carefully -- that it was a reasoned choice, one that they measured against other choices. I think it was a moderate choice as against other things that might have been done.

I do not know the meaning of the blood to the members of The Resistance -- perhaps there were many meanings. To me it seemed to symbolize their preference to offer the most elemental parts of their beings in defense of freedom, decency and rationality in this, their country, as over and against the shedding of the blood of thousands of people in Vietnam -- and thereby adding to the adsurdity of

Then there was another moment in which we were made aware of the reality of sacrifice. A young man, Darrell Skrabak, a draft refuser recently released from Lompoc prison, spoke, and gave his reasons for having been willing to serve the prison term, and his belief that this was not too great a sacrifice to make. We are all faced with decisions and he urge us to make the decision, realizing the consequences, but not being afraid of them.

Following his address, which resulted in a standing ovation, we sang another hymn, The New Patriot. It begins: "Who is the patriot? He who lights the torch of war from hill to hill? Or he who kindles on the heights the beacon of a world's good will...?"
and it ends:
"Who is the patriot? Only he whose business is the general good, Whose keenest sword is sympathy, whose dearest flag is brotherhood."

It is the hymn which, if you are willing, you may sing in a few minutes.

During the singing of this hymn came the offering. Twenty-two young men walked up to the table we had placed on the chancel, on which there were two lighted candles and two glass chalices -- one of them empty; the other containing about a pint of blood which had been contributed by members of The Resistance some time before the service began. I did not count them, but I would guess that fewer of the cards were dropped in the chalice in which there was blood than into the empty chalice. No one burned his draft card.

As soon as the young men had depostied their cards I walked over and placed in the chalice which had no blood the scroll on which were listed the names of people who had signed the statement of complicity -- the statement which said that the signators risk whatever they need risk in support of young men who conscientiously oppose war.

Following the singing and the offering of the draft cards and the statement of complicity, the benediction was delivered by the Rev. Wayne C. Hartmire. Then Father Weitzel and I took the two chalices and went outside, and subsequently a parade was formed and we marched toward the Old Federal Building.

In the order of service we asked that the people march on the sidewalk and maintain good order. I did not march all the way with them because I had some work to complete at the church. I came back and then went on to the Old Federal Building. I was told that on the route there had been no trouble. There had been very few people shouting insults at the marchers, but a number who uttered words of encouragement, and a few who joined the march en route. There had been a great deal of attention shown to the chalices, but everything had gone very peacefully.

At the Federal Building there were a few speeches and then the two chalices were taken into the building and left near the elevator. The young men had been refused permission to go to the United States Attorney's Office.

That is the story of the famous blood-filled chalice. It is the story of the Service of the Act of Conscience. It is the story of young men who every day are putting their futures on the line because they oppose war -- and especially the horribly immoral war against the people of Vietnam. They have decided that they are not going to bow down to the cruel machine of war, to the threats of government. They are not going to be cowed by the vicious mouthings of superpatriots, nor are they going to be seduced by the squeaks and squirmings of fainthearted liberals.

man's condition in the world. At the same time it is presenting to us here and now what we are responsible for there.

Against absurdity there must be revolt if we are to live, and if we are to be human, but our revolt must be measured -- must be reasonable -- must be moderate. And the only means we have for thus measuring our revolt is human compassion.

Human compassion is the active concern for the life and growth of humanity. The concern must be active, and implies labor -- possibly sacrifice.

Human compassion implies responsibility -- the ability to respond to the needs for love and attention.

Human compassion has as a major component the attitude and actuality of respect -- not fear or awe, as for governmental authorities, but the ability to see persons as they are -- and to have compassion for them regardless of what they are.

Human compassion requires knowing man -- knowing his foibles and virtues, his strengths and weaknesses -- for only by knowing man do care and responsibility have a chance to operate with compassion.

It is this human compassion of which great religious leaders have spoken when they have said: "Love thy neighbor as thyself" or have voiced their version of the golden rule. It is this human compassion which I believe motivates the young people who compose The Resistance.

It is this ~~human~~ compassion which is the last best hope of the world. It is this human compassion which is the foundation stone of our most sacred religious beliefs, of this institution -- and for centuries, it has been the best expression of the Unitarian and Universalist religious beliefs and practices -- and of the beliefs and practices of all other religions worthy of the name.

Our church has stood for freedom -- both here and abroad. It was born out of the struggle for freecom -- out of revolt and resistance to those who would be gods. Michael Servetus was burned at the stake for his insistence on speaking the truth as he understood it; the last two victims of the burning stake in England were Unitarians who had been condemned for heresy.

Universalists, because of their compassion for humanity, could not believe that god could be so cruel as to condemn even the most evil man to eternal damnation -- and they revolted against the religious dogma of their times.

The finest hour of Unitarians and Universalists throughout our history has been when we have spoken for freedom and human decency -- and when we have provided places for others to do the same.

History has a trap -- for it is so easy to assume that once a thing has been accomplished it has been accomplished for always -- or at least for our lifetimes. Yet we know that life is full of beginnings -- beginnings that can become despair, cynicism, bitter reaction. Or beginnings that can become desperate but joyous revolt -- can become expressions of human compassion -- can become the community we all long for -- and which once in a while we achieve -- as happened here, in the auditorium of the First Unitarian Church of Los Angeles, at noon on Monday, December 4, 1967 -- the national day of resistance.

And these beginnings and this becoming are always with us. The prophets who will warn us of impending disaster, who will risk and shed their life's blood out of compassion for humanity -- even those who despise them -- these prophets are always needed. Sometimes they counsel us -- they implore us -- to resist monarch and government. And, sometimes, we should heed their words.

May we feel grateful to the young martyrs of The Resistance who have offered to sacrifice their liberty and their future -- and even given a few drops of blood to symbolize their determination -- in order that we -- all of us -- might have a tiny bit better chance for peace on earth.

And maybe be grateful for those few who join in striving to obtain and maintain the freedom we so highly prize.

And finally may you and I dedicate ourselves to those beginnings which could result in our becoming more compassionate and more human -- even in a world in which our hopes are absurd. For in our beginnings are our becoming -- and the only becoming that fits man is to be man.

The only way to be man is to revolt against the pains of our existence, but to revolt in moderation and with compassion.

They agreed to have a demonstration August 6, 12:30 p.m., at Centinella Park, Inglewood, and at the Los Angeles Induction Center. Singer Judy Collins will entertain.

It was announced that Judy Collins will be at the Troubador in August (about 12 -24), and she has agreed to donate her earnings from three performances to the Resistance.

Walt Skinner said his new address is 1730 N. Bellford,
Altadena, Calif.
798-4785

Roberts said he lives in Palmdale. He plans to leave home in the near future and will probably move into Omega House. He said his father is an Army major (maybe retired).

Attorney Michael Greene informed the group of the present status of the collage case and the tactics he plans to use in court. Greene said that if the Government does not have the collage in court, he will subpoena it.

Greene said the first time Mr. Worrell asked for a warrant to seize the collage he was told to forget about it because the Government was not prosecuting draft card cases. No crime has been committed, therefore there is no need for the Government to have the collage. Mr. Worrell returned and received the warrant. Greene said the affadavit filed to obtain the warrant is not very impressive, and he does not believe Mr. Worrell will be very impressive, either.

Greene said there are three parts to his approach to this case.
Part One.
Greene will subpoena Mr. Worrell and will question him about (1.) his activities in MacArthur Park the day the collage was made; and (2.) his conversations with Norman Witty (ph.).
Greene will challenge the sufficiency of the affadavit. If the judge says the warrant should not have been issued, they will immediately seize the collage and remove it from the court before the FBI can obtain another warrant. If this fails, Greene said he will proceed to the next step.

Part Two.
Greene will challenge the constitutionality of the draft card law.

Greene said he may stop here, especially if he thinks the judge is favorably impressed with his arguments.

Part Three.
Greene said he may have several of the men whose cards are on the collage testify as to their reasons for putting their cards on the collage. However, he said he will screen these men carefully because he does not want them to be charged with conspiracy. Greene said men who are interested in testifying should contact Sherna Gluck, and he will talk to them later.

Greene said this is not his whole case. He said he did not want to tell all of it because many people were present at the meeting.

It is my opinion that from Greene's attitude and his description of this case, he hopes to win the case mainly by his questioning of Mr. Worrell. In speaking of the case, he was critical of Mr. Worrell.

While all,names above,didn't remain full duration(6:30-9 p.m.) Morris Kight and Rose Mathews did.

Nothing learned except two names on the"fast board". Can not identify them or length of time they had participated, they are, Sarah Orowitz and Carol Orowitz.

Another young gentleman, have heard Morris refer to him, and introduced only as Gino.

Morris related that a newsman had been out that morning to get a story, for Citizen's Newspaper. Morris informed him that he would not give a verbal interview to him, having seen that this particular newspaper is a right-wing type and the verbal words would probably be twisted, but didn't care if he wanted to take a picture.(Picture appeared in Citizen's News, Wed., July 17 issue).

Morris's attitude, now, to this vigil, fast action, was stated as to he didn't know how he gets in these messes, having to be here, all the time, but he guessed he'd brought it on himself and it was his own fault but has to carry it out until the 19th now. (He related this to Rose and two other persons,(who'd just stopped by in support.)

AUGUST 8, 1968

LA T-1 advised on April 24, 1968, that Alexis Thompson and Maria Castro, members of the Women's Resistance in Los Angeles, were arrested by the Los Angeles Police Department on April 24, 1968, while conducting a sit-in in front of Armed Forces Induction Station, Los Angeles at an anti-draft demonstration.

LA T-1 advised on that same date that the Women's Resistance, which began through the efforts of Betty Rottger, is an organization composed of some 50 women who are opposed to the Selective Service System and are sympathetic to the efforts of draft resisters. Their actions to support these resisters are to take the form of civil disobedience.

LA T-2 advised in November, 1967, that Betty Rottger has recently been transfered from the 24th Congressional District Club to the Echo Park Section, Southern California District Communist Party (CP).

On August 8, 1968, LA T-1 advised that Alexis Thompson and Maria Castro are scheduled to come to trial at 11:00 a.m. on August 8, 1968 in the Los Angeles County Courts Building, on the charges arising out of the sit-in on April 24, 1968. The Women's Resistance plans to picket the County Courts Building at 11:00 a.m., the time set for the opening of the trial.

About 11:15 a.m., on August 8, 1968, a Special Agent ofthe FBI, in talking with one of the demonstrators, was advised that though the above trial has been postponed, since one of the arresting officers is on vacation, the demonstration will take place anyway.

The demonstration began about 11:30 a.m., with about six white women picketing in front of the Grand Avenue entrance to the County Courts Building.

Picketing continued until about 12:15 p.m. with a maximum of 26 participating. Upon terminating the picket line, 29 women then lined up along the sidewalk at the curb on Grand Avenue and faced the street holding a silent vigil until about 1:00 p.m., when they dispersed, without incident.

Noted among the participants in the vigil line were Betty Rottger (supra) and Helen Travis.

> LA T-3 on March 23, 1959, advised that based on information furnished by a CP functionary, Helen and Robert Travis, her husband, were then members of the Michigan District of the CP, State of Michigan.

Some of the placards held by the participants read:

"We Support the Men Who Refuse to Kill."

"Life Not Death."

"Human History Began With an Act of Disobedience, It is Likely to End with an Act of Disobedience."

Protesters Picket Trial At Pendleton

CAMP PENDLETON (AP)—A Marine private from Connecticut who refused to go to Vietnam has been convicted of unauthorized absence by a special court martial.

Outside the camp gates, nearly 50 antiwar protestors armed with daisies and signs paraded.

The trial lasted nearly eight hours. The court martial board scheduled sentencing of Pfc. John Robinson for Aug. 22.

Robinson, of Westport, Conn., was arrested July 18 in Marin City, along with eight others. All announced they were resigning from military duty in conscientious protest against the Vietnam war.

The protesters yesterday set up camp outside the back gate to the big Marine base here while the courtmartial took place. Signs such as "Robinson chose life instead of death" were displayed.

All but five demonstrators were ordered by Capt. J. R. Stables of the sheriff's department to leave at 3:30 p.m.—just before the daily exodus of from 3000 to 4000 mays from the base.

Brian Drolet, 25, a coordinator for the march, which began at noon at Mission San Luis Rey, said the demonstration had been planned in San Francisco. Drolet is a theology student in San Francisco.

He said the bulk of marchers were members of the "Los Angeles Resistance" to selective service and clergymen from San Diego and San Francisco.

Drolet said Robinson, who was AWOL 45 days, left the Marine Corps "for reasons of conscience after deciding he was a non-violent person."

THE RESISTANCE

A source, who has furnished reliable information in the past, advised on August 14, 1968 that the "The Resistance" group in Los Angeles plans to participate in a demonstration outside the main gate of Camp Pendleton, California, beginning at 11:30 a.m. on August 15, 1968. The indicated purpose of this demonstration is to support a United States Marine named Robinson, who reportedly refused to go to Vietnam and is being held in a stockade at Camp Pendleton. The Los Angeles group plans to arrive at approximately 11:30 a.m. on August 15, 1968 at the San Luis Rey Mission near Camp Pendleton where they will meet with the "The Resistance" (San Diego) group. All of them will then walk to the Camp Pendleton main gate and begin to demonstrate. It is believed that approximately 100 persons will participate in this activity.

On August 14, 1968, a second source, who has furnished reliable information in the past, furnished substantially the same information as listed above concerning this planned demonstration.

"The Resistance" is self described in its literature as "---a group of young men determined to act. Anyone and everyone can join.---Resistance is active and offensive, not passive and defensive. We will provoke continued confrontations with this war government. They're in an insoluble dilemna; they can prosecute and imprison us which will bring new waves of protest and dissent of unsurpassed intensity, or they can set us free, which will generate impetus for the expansion of the movement. Either way, we will gain ground and support and new members."
